MAHA 'POWER' SHIFT

Sunetra sworn in as first woman DyCM

This marks a major shift from her social work background to the center of state power. Her rise follows the passing of her husband, Ajit Pawar.

MUMBAI

Sunetra Pawar (62), the wife of late NCP chief Ajit Pawar, on Saturday sworn in as Maharashtra's first woman Deputy Chief Minister at the Lok Bhawan in Mumbai amid chants of "Long live Ajitdada" and "Vahinisaheb aage badho".

She replaces her late husband and NCP chief Ajit Pawar in the state cabinet.

PORTFOLIOS

EXCISE, SPORTS, MINORITY AFFAIRS

Following Ajit Pawar's death in an air crash in Baramati on January 28, the Nationalist Congress Party, a constituent of the Mahayuti government, elected Sunetra as the leader of its legislature wing on Saturday, making her the party's nominee for the deputy chief minister post in the Mahayuti government. She was elected during a meeting of the party's legislature wing, held at the office of late Ajit Pawar on the ground floor of the Vidhan Bhavan complex in south Mumbai.

A letter to that effect was submitted to CM Devendra Fadnavis, who forwarded it to Governor Acharya Devvrat. Her nomination was proposed by senior NCP leader Chhagan Bhujbal and seconded by other senior leaders, and she was unanimously elected.

Learnt about Sunetra's swearing-in through media: Sharad Pawar

NCP (SP) chief Sharad Pawar distanced himself from the development, saying he learnt of Sunetra Pawar's swearing-in through media reports and that the decision appeared to have been taken by the NCP. In a new twist, Sharad Pawar on Saturday morning claimed that Ajit Pawar had been actively working toward a merger of the two NCP factions and had even proposed February 12 as the tentative date for reunification.

In this difficult time, the love, trust, and support given by the people of Maharashtra are my greatest strengths. Based on your trust, I will continue to move forward with new hope and energy, keeping Dada's thoughts alive.

—Sunetra Pawar, Maha DyCM

Best wishes to Sunetra Pawar Ji as she begins her tenure as Deputy Chief Minister of Maharashtra, the first woman to hold this responsibility. I am confident she will work tirelessly for the welfare of the people of the state and fulfil the vision of the late Ajitdada Pawar.

—Narendra Modi, PM

From reluctant politician to bearer of husband's legacy

MUMBAI

Sunetra Pawar scripted history on Saturday as she entered Maharashtra's political history books as the state's first woman Deputy Chief Minister, marking a dramatic transition from a life largely spent outside frontline politics to the very heart of power.

For decades, she stayed away from active politics, working quietly in the fields of social initiatives, environment, sustainability and entrepreneurship.

A Rajya Sabha member and a long-time presence in social work around Baramati, her rise follows the vacuum created by the sudden death of her husband and Nationalist Congress Party chief Ajit Pawar.

Her elevation as the state's Deputy CM and the head of the breakaway NCP faction earlier spearheaded by her husband is being watched closely for what it signals about the NCP's internal dynamics.

POLITICAL ENTRY

Despite belonging to one of Maharashtra's most influential political families, Sunetra Pawar remained away from electoral politics for decades.

That changed in 2024, when she was fielded by the Ajit Pawar-led faction of the NCP as its Lok Sabha candidate from Baramati, a constituency synonymous with the Pawar legacy.

The contest, fought against her sister-in-law Supriya Sule, became a proxy battle for control within both the family and the party. Sunetra Pawar lost the election, but her political journey had unmistakably begun.

Soon after, she was nominated to the Rajya Sabha, giving her a formal role at the national level. Since taking oath, she has maintained a steady parliamentary presence, participating in debates and committee work, even as she kept a relatively low public profile.

Her potential move to Mantralaya now represents a sharp acceleration in her political trajectory, placing her at the centre of governance during a sensitive transition period for the NCP.

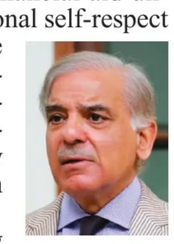
Ashamed of begging for money: Pak PM

KARACHI

Pakistan's Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif has expressed frustration over his country's reliance on foreign loans, saying seeking financial aid undermines national self-respect and is a source of embarrassment for officials, including Army Chief Asim Munir.



Addressing Pakistan's prominent exporters and business leaders at an event in Islamabad, Sharif emphasised the burden of debt on Pakistan's dignity, indicating the need for alternative economic strategies. "We feel ashamed when Field Marshal Asim Munir and I go around the world 'begging' for money. Taking loans is a huge burden on our self-respect. Our heads bow down in shame. We cannot say NO to many things they want us to do," he said, as reported by agencies.

Sharif's admission of "begging" for loans highlights the country's economic struggles and reliance on international assistance. This comes as Pakistan seeks IMF support and debt rollovers.

SMOKERS' POCKETS FEEL THE BURN AS NEW TOBACCO TAX REGIME KICKS IN

NEW DELHI

From February 1, cigarettes, pan masala and other tobacco products will come under a new, tougher tax regime, with the Centre introducing additional excise duties and a health and national security cess over and above the highest 40% GST slab. The move marks the most significant overhaul of taxation on so-called "sin goods" since the roll-out of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) in July 2017.

The new levies will replace the existing structure of 28% GST plus compensation cess that has applied to cigarettes and tobacco products for nearly nine years. With the GST compensation cess set to end after repayment of Covid-era loans to states, the Centre has opted for a fresh framework that relies on excise duties and a dedicated cess to maintain revenue flows while aligning taxation more closely with public health objectives. The government is also introducing a new MRP-based valuation system for several tobacco products such as chewing tobacco, filter khaini, jarda scented tobacco and gutkha. Under this system, GST will be calculated based on the retail price printed on the packet, instead of factory value.

This move is expected to reduce tax evasion and improve revenue collection. Pan masala manufacturers will now have to take fresh registration under the new health and national security cess law starting February 1.

As cigarette taxes rise sharply from February, sellers say smokers are already switching to cheaper, smuggled brands, exposing how price hikes may reshape India's smoking behaviour.

Income tax oppression has increased: Pai

BENGALURU

Former Infosys chief financial officer and IT industry veteran Mohandas Pai has slammed "tax terrorism", saying the income-tax oppression is "enormous".

"Today, there is Rs 30 lakh crore of tax amount stuck up in disputes, Rs 15 lakh crore for which the cases are in court. Of this, 80-85 percent happened in the last five years," Pai said during a panel discussion at the Rising Bharat Summit in New Delhi on April 9.

Pai said he has been in business for 40 years and has faced "regulatory oppression" in all these years, adding "brown imperialists" took over from the British after independence.

"We are subjects and victims of government in Delhi and Bangalore and other places because they think they are rulers and we are their subjects and victims. And that wears off into regulations," the Aarin Capital Partners chairman said.

"In the last four years, we have collected Rs 75 lakh crore in direct taxes. How much of black money have they found? How much is the tax they have collected for black money? We had Angel Tax for 8 years...Every time they change a law, they give more powers (to tax authorities)."

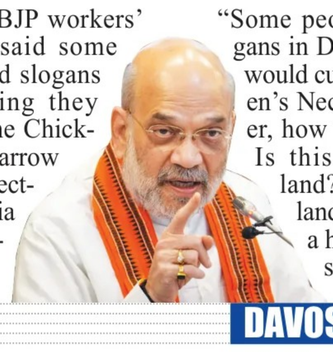
The case has been transferred to the SIT with immediate effect. The SIT will function under the overall supervision of Joint Commissioner of Police (West Zone) C Vamshi Krishna.

'Chicken's Neck' is India's land, no one can lay hands on it'

SILIGURI

Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Saturday asserted that the strategically crucial Siliguri Corridor, often referred to as the 'Chicken's Neck', belongs to India and no one would be allowed to threaten or tamper with it.

Addressing a BJP workers' meeting, Shah said some people had raised slogans in Delhi claiming they would "cut off the Chicken's Neck", the narrow strip of land connecting mainland India with the north-eastern states.



"Some people raised slogans in Delhi saying they would cut off the 'Chicken's Neck'. Why, brother, how will you cut it? Is this your father's land? This is India's land; no one can lay a hand on it," Shah said.

The 'Chicken's Neck', officially known as the Siliguri Corridor, is a narrow stretch of land- about 20-22 km wide and nearly 60 km long- in north Bengal that connects the rest of India with its northeastern states. It is considered a critical and sensitive lifeline from both security and strategic perspectives.

DAVOS DIARY

Had fruitful meetings with Tata Sons, 46 other firms: Patil

BENGALURU

Karnataka Minister for Large and Medium Industries MB Patil on Saturday said the state held 46 bilateral engagements with global and Indian companies, investors, academic institutions and country leaders at the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos, without signing any MoUs.

Speaking at a press conference in Bengaluru, Patil said the meetings included 26 international and over 15 Indian companies across sectors such as aerospace and defence, advanced manufacturing, food processing, space technology, life sciences, data centres, digital infrastructure and clean energy. While no agreements were signed, the discussions resulted in a strong and credible investment pipeline.

"From Davos, Karnataka has advanced a robust pipeline of investments, expansions and partnerships across aviation and logistics, clean energy manufacturing, advanced manufacturing, space tech, data centres and R&D," he said.

The delegation also held government-to-government discussions with Liechtenstein and Singapore to strengthen institutional collaboration and attract investments. Interactions were held with global thought leaders including IMF's Gita Gopinath and entrepreneur Nikhil Kamath, as well as WEF leaders to deepen Karnataka's engagement with global innovation, trade and sustainability platforms.

Patil said investors showed interest in marquee investments in Tier-2 and Tier-3 cities, expansion of Global Capability Centres, grid stability for data centres, and water security solutions. Karnataka was positioned as India's leading hub for AI talent, clean manufacturing and next-generation industries.

Global companies engaged included Coca-Cola, Amazon Web Services, Lenovo, Nokia, PayPal, Schneider Electric and Mistral AI. Patil said MoUs were deliberately not signed at Davos, preferring investors to visit Karnataka first.

He added that Karnataka has secured Rs 1.1 lakh crore in fresh investments over the past 11 months and has a near-term pipeline of over Rs 1.5 lakh crore, with focus now on swift execution rather than announcements.

SIT to probe Confident Group chairman CJ Roy's death

The SIT will function under the overall supervision of Joint Commissioner of Police (West Zone) C Vamshi Krishna

BENGALURU

The Bengaluru police have constituted a Special Investigation Team (SIT) to probe the death of CJ Roy, founder and chairman of the Confident Group, who was found dead at his office premises in the city on January 30. An Unnatural Death Report (UDR) has been registered at Ashok Nagar police station in connection with the incident.

In a press note issued on Saturday, Police Commissioner Seemanth Kumar Singh said the decision to form an SIT was taken to ensure a "comprehensive and meticulous investigation" into Roy's death. The case has been transferred to the SIT with immediate effect.

Vamshi Krishna to lead probe team

The SIT will function under the overall supervision of Joint Commissioner of Police (West Zone) C Vamshi Krishna. Deputy Commissioner of Police (South Division) Lokesh Jagalasar has been appointed the chief investigating officer. Other members of the team include Deputy Commissioner of Police (Central Division) Akshay Hake, Assistant Commissioner of Police (Halasuru Gate Sub-Division) Sudhir, ACP of the Central Crime Records Bureau Ramachandra, and Ashok Nagar police inspector Ravi KB. The team has also been authorised to induct additional officers and resources as required for the investigation.

According to the police, Roy was found with a gunshot injury at his office on Langford Road on Friday afternoon while an Income Tax raid was underway. He was initially rushed to a nearby private hospital and later shifted to Narayana Hospital at HSR Layout for further treatment, where he was declared dead. Police said Roy had arrived at his office earlier in the day while the searches were still in progress.

"The income tax team was searching the premises for the last two to three days. We are not aware of all the details yet. A team from Kerala had come. Police are in touch with the family members, who are not in India at present. They are expected to arrive today," the Commissioner told reporters.

Roy owned a licensed firearm, his brother, CJ Babu, told a Malayalam television channel. Babu also alleged that Income Tax officials had been troubling Roy and that the searches had continued for three days.

Confident Group is a major real estate developer with operations across several southern states, including Karnataka and Kerala, and has its headquarters in Dubai. Confident Projects (India) Pvt Ltd has been involved in multiple tax disputes with the Income Tax Department before the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal and the Karnataka High Court over assessment-related issues.

A native of Kochi, Roy was also associated with the Malayalam film industry and had produced films, including Mohanlal-starrer Casanova (2012). The Confident Group was the title sponsor of several seasons of Bigg Boss Malayalam, hosted by Mohanlal.

Centre misusing agencies like IT: Priyank

Roy's death during the Income Tax action has triggered sharp political reactions in Karnataka, with several ministers alleging harassment by central agencies. Karnataka IT and BT Minister Priyank Kharge accused the Union government of misusing agencies such as the Income Tax Department, Enforcement Directorate and GST authorities. "This is nothing but harassment by Income Tax and Enforcement Directorate officials, and it is happening across the country," Priyank said, adding that small and medium businesses and individuals were being subjected to undue pressure.

Will bring out the truth: DKS

Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar said preliminary information suggested that Roy died after being questioned by Income Tax officials. "When they were asking him a lot of questions, he is said to have asked for five minutes of time, gone inside, and did this," Shivakumar said. "We will do a high-level investigation and bring out the truth. This shouldn't have happened. He was a good businessman."

K'taka coffee farmers seek climate insurance support

Bengaluru

Karnataka Planters' Association (KPA) has urged the Union government to include coffee under climate-linked insurance in the upcoming Budget 2026. Coffee growers in Chikmagaluru, Hassan, and Kodagu, which produce over 70% of India's coffee, face frequent losses due to droughts, floods, and unpredictable weather. Currently, coffee, tea, and rubber are not covered under Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana (PMFBY), which offers 80–90% premium support. Farmers demand regulatory changes, better compensation, and policy-based disaster relief. Rising input and labour costs, climate volatility, and export requirements are straining growers. KPA hopes the Budget will boost insurance, irrigation, research, and credit support.

Wind up Yelahanka flyover work by Sept end: GBA chief Maheshwar Rao

BENGALURU

He instructed engineers and contractors to solve traffic-related hurdles and speed up the remaining work to meet the deadline

Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) chief Commissioner Maheshwar Rao has directed officials to complete the Yelahanka flyover by the end of September 2026.

He issued the instruction while inspecting civic works across the Bengaluru North Municipal Corporation limits.

The two-km flyover on Doddaballapur Main Road is about 70% complete. Of the planned 56 pillars, 51 are ready, and five remain. Out of 447 segments, 351 have been placed, while 96 are pending. Because of heavy traffic, segment alignment is being done at night. Rao told engineers and contractors to solve traffic-related hurdles and speed up the remaining work.

On Hennur–Bagalur Road, white-topping has been finished on four of the five kilometres. The final one-kilometre stretch must be completed within 15 days and opened after curing. He also asked officials to begin work on the opposite carriageway within a month in coordination with traffic police.

Rao instructed that five acres of BDA land near Hennur Bande be handed over for a new playground, with tree planting around the site. In HBR Layout Phase 1, three acres of BDA land will be used to create a vending zone for street vendors along with a public garden.

Regarding the Yelahanka Railway Underbridge, one side is complete, but work on the other side is stalled due to land issues. Rao told officials to coordinate with railway authorities, resolve land matters, and finish the project quickly, including road widening.

Senior civic officials and engineers accompanied him during the inspection.

Rao orders action on civic lands

Greater Bengaluru Authority Chief Commissioner Maheshwar Rao has directed officials to take immediate possession of lands for which relinquishment deeds have already been handed over to the civic body.

He gave the instruction during a review meeting at Yelahanka Mini Vidhana Soudha on issues related to the Bengaluru North City Corporation.

Rao told officers to prepare a list of such lands that are yet to be taken over and begin development works, including road widening and public use projects, without delay.

He also reviewed property tax collection and noted that out of the Rs 1,242 crore target, about Rs 640 crore has been collected so far. Officials were asked to closely monitor progress in each Assembly constituency and take steps to meet the goal.

The commissioner further ordered identification of buildings under construction that have temporary power connections. If any structure is found violating approved plans, electricity supply must be disconnected and legal action initiated.

To improve traffic movement, Rao said towing operations must begin immediately to remove abandoned vehicles from roadsides, in coordination with traffic police.

Regarding the Jakkur Railway Overbridge, he said ramp work on one side is nearly done and the remaining portion must be finished by March-end.

Civic officials said efforts are under way to strengthen tax recovery and update property records. Rao also instructed teams to strictly prevent roadside garbage dumping and maintain cleaner surroundings across North Bengaluru.

Senior engineers, revenue officers, and zonal staff attended the meeting and were told to submit progress reports regularly without fail.

Holy Angels High School in Hampinagar, Vijayanagar, celebrated its school anniversary "Sambhrama-2026" with great enthusiasm at Nandi Link Ground in Nayandahalli. Students, parents, teachers, and guests gathered in large numbers to witness the colourful programme.

The event was inaugurated by Sri Pradeep Krishnappa, Congress youth leader of the Vijayanagar Assembly constituency. Speaking on the occasion, he said schools should not turn into factories where children only memorise lessons. He praised Holy Angels High School for focusing on the all-round development of students.

He said the school has earned public trust and improved its rating every year. He also noted that quality education is being provided to children from poor and middle-class families, which he said was a proud achievement.

HC acts on illegal sand mining crisis

BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has taken suo motu action over allegations of illegal sand mining in the state, following the statement of Home Minister G. Parameshwara in the Assembly that influential figures from multiple political parties are involved.

The Home Minister admitted his inability to control sand mafias during the Assembly session on January 27, 2026, calling illegal mining "a big business" and noting the embarrassment and risks in naming individuals. The bench of Justice D.K. Singh and Justice Tara Vitasta Ganju observed that court-supervised investigation is necessary to tackle this growing problem.

The High Court has registered a public interest litigation (PIL), issued notices to the government, and directed it to file objections within three weeks. The matter has been transferred to the Chief Justice's bench for appropriate assignment.

Reports suggest that sand mining continues at night along the Krishna river basin, affecting farmers' crops and creating dust hazards. Lack of CCTV cameras and check posts has led to accidents, injuries, and even threats to public representatives. A woman MLA from Raichur claimed she was threatened by sand mafias after raising concerns.

The bench noted that while tenders for sand extraction have been called, the process is incomplete, allowing mafias to continue illegal profits.

BJP slams state gov over Mysuru drug case

BENGALURU

The Karnataka unit of the Bharatiya Janata Party on Saturday strongly criticized the Congress-led state government after the Narcotics Control Bureau uncovered an illegal drug manufacturing unit in Mysuru, the home district of Chief Minister Siddaramaiah.

The opposition party said the government has failed to control drug trafficking and warned that the growing problem is putting the future of young people at serious risk.

Leader of the Opposition R. Ashoka said the BJP would launch a statewide protest if the government did not take firm and immediate action. He said the issue must be treated with urgency and accused the administration of being careless. Ashoka also referred to a recent Assembly discussion, claiming the Home Minister's reply showed a lack of concern about the spread of drugs in Karnataka.

He questioned the performance of the state police and intelligence wings, saying Karnataka Police were once known for efficiency but now appear weakened. He asked how a major drug operation could run in Mysuru without local agencies noticing it, while central teams stepped in to expose it.

The criticism came after the NCB announced that it had broken an inter-state drug network and sealed a secret laboratory in Mysuru's Hebbal Industrial Area. Officials said drugs worth about Rs 10 crore in the street market, cash, a vehicle, and large amounts of chemicals were seized.

The BJP said stronger enforcement, better coordination, and strict monitoring are needed to stop drugs from reaching youth and harming families across the state. Party leaders said they will also demand regular reviews, special drives near schools, and public awareness campaigns about drug dangers.

Court rejects plea over religious sentiment case

BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has refused to quash a criminal case against a person accused of hurting religious sentiments by posting obscene pictures of Hindu deities and political leaders in a WhatsApp group named "Bajrangi Go Kallu."

A single-judge bench, led by Justice M. Nagaprasanna, dismissed the petition filed by Sirajuddin from Kuppetti Karaya village in Belthangady taluk, Dakshina Kannada, which sought to stop the investigation.

The court noted that the allegations have the potential to hurt religious sentiments and disturb communal harmony. The bench observed that the investigating officer appeared to have not proceeded equally against all group administrators. The court added that members who actively allow the circulation of such images should also be investigated.

The High Court emphasised that crimes of this nature, affecting religious and social harmony, cannot have investigations stopped midway. The case, dating back to 2021, is still under investigation, and the court instructed the investigating officer to complete the inquiry promptly without delays.

The order highlights the court's stance that freedom of speech does not protect actions that intentionally offend religious beliefs. Authorities are expected to complete the investigation soon and ensure accountability for all individuals involved in the dissemination of the objectionable content.

Education is the Power to Build a Self-Reliant and Developed India: Guv

MYSURU

Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot, emphasized that education and knowledge should be used not only for personal success but also for the welfare of the nation and society.

Addressing students while presiding over the 21st Convocation of Karnataka State Open University (KSOU) in Mysuru on Saturday, he said that rapid advancements in artificial intelligence, automation, digital technologies, and green innovation are transforming lives and employment opportunities. In such a dynamic environment student—especially those who have completed their education through distance learning—to adopt a mindset of continuous learning. India is steadily progressing towards becoming a self-reliant and developed nation. Innovation, entrepreneurship, and skill development are crucial to this journey. Startup culture, rural entrepreneurship, and social enterprises provide immense opportunities for the youth," he said. He further stressed the importance of staying connected to India's cultural values by embracing the spirit of 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam'—the world is one family. The distance education system has become more effective with the integration of digital platforms.

He congratulated the Vice Chancellor Sharanappa V. Halse, and his team for their commendable efforts in strengthening open and distance learning and hoped that the university would further enhance skill-based courses, job-oriented training, and research initiatives in the coming years.

Addressing the graduating students, Gehlot said, "You come from diverse backgrounds—many of you have pursued education while working, managing family responsibilities, or overcoming financial challenges. This reflects your strong willpower. I urge you to carry this determination throughout your life. Continue learning, keep progressing, and actively contribute to nation building."

Union Minister of State for Education and North Eastern Development, Dr Sukanth Majumdar who delivered the convocation address, said online education has introduced flexible, learner-centred models that support self-paced learning, personalised instruction, and continuous skill development. The integration of artificial intelligence, learning analytics, virtual laboratories and interactive multimedia content has enhanced student engagement and learning outcomes. Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs), micro-credentials, and modular certification programmes are allowing learners to acquire industry-relevant skills aligned with rapidly changing job markets, while blended and hybrid models are combining the strengths of online and face-to-face instruction to improve effectiveness and scalability.

He said one of India's major educational challenges has been expanding access to higher education while maintaining quality. Open universities and distance education institutions have significantly contributed to improving the Gross Enrolment Ratio of the country. Today, distance and open learning account for more than one-tenth of total higher education enrolment in India, making it a vital pillar in achieving the National Education Policy 2020 target of 50 percent GER by 2035. Without the contribution of open universities, this ambitious national goal would remain unattainable.

The minister noted that the future of education is digital, blended and technology-enabled. They are witnessing rapid transformation through artificial intelligence-driven adaptive learning, massive open online courses, micro-credentials, virtual laboratories, simulation-based learning, and hybrid education models. Open and distance learning institutions must evolve as innovation hubs, focusing not only on content delivery but also on employability, entrepreneurship, and lifelong learning to meet the demands of a dynamic global economy. As India moves steadily towards the vision of Viksit Bharat @ 2047, open universities will play a decisive role in nation building. They will be instrumental in expanding access to higher education, supporting reskilling and upskilling of the workforce, enabling education for youth, women and marginalised communities and integrating skills, innovation and entrepreneurship into academic programmes. Open universities are not supplementary to the higher education system; they are central to India's development agenda.

A big disappointment was waiting for her as the authorities failed to distribute the certificate in the convocation but asked her to collect from the examination department. Dr Aparna showed to the media the fees receipt and vented out her anger against the varsity authorities for creating the mess.

MYSURU

In a major crackdown on narcotics trafficking, the Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) has dismantled a large inter-state drug trafficking syndicate and unearthed a clandestine drug manufacturing laboratory in Mysuru.

The operation has resulted in the seizure of drugs worth approximately ₹10 crore in street value, along with ₹25.6 lakh in cash, a Toyota Fortuner vehicle and over 500 kilograms of various chemicals allegedly used for manufacturing narcotics.

According to officials, four individuals, including the mastermind behind the operation, have been arrested in connection with the case. All the accused are reportedly residents of Jalore district in Rajasthan, highlighting the inter-state nature of the drug trafficking network. The arrests and seizures were made following an extensive and well-coordinated investigation by the NCB sleuths.

The recovery of such a large quantity of drugs and chemicals has raised serious concerns about Mysuru emerging as a potential hub for narcotics production and distribution. Investigators suspect that the clandestine laboratory was actively involved in the production of synthetic drugs which were then supplied to different parts of the country through an organized supply chain.

NCB officials have stated that further investigation is underway to identify other members involved in the drug cartel. Authorities are also focusing on tracing the origin and procurement of laboratory equipment and chemicals used in the illegal manufacturing unit. The agency believes that the network could have links to a larger interstate drug supply chain, and efforts are being intensified to expose the entire operation.

Mysuru Cops in Soup

Meanwhile, the development has sparked controversy as Mysuru City Police Commissioner Seema Latkar had earlier denied reports of narcotics being seized from a so-called 'phenyl' manufacturing unit in the city. However, the detailed press release issued by the NCB from Ahmedabad in Gujarat confirming the recovery of narcotics has put local police authorities under scrutiny.

The NCB operation has exposed what many see as a serious lapse in local enforcement, especially as central agencies and police teams from other states have reportedly been conducting raids on suspected narcotics manufacturing units in Mysuru. The massive seizure and arrests have brought renewed focus on the increasing presence of illegal drug activities in the heritage city, popularly known as the 'City of Palaces'.

The incident has also raised public concern about the growing drug menace and its potential impact on youth and society. Authorities have emphasized the need for stronger coordination among law enforcement agencies to curb the spread of narcotics.

NCB has urged citizens to play an active role in combating drug trafficking by sharing any information related to narcotics through its MANAS Helpline (Toll-Free: 1933). Officials have assured that the identity of informers will be kept strictly confidential.

As the investigation progresses, authorities are hopeful that the crackdown will lead to further arrests and help dismantle the larger network involved in drug production and distribution across states.

Leopard Attacks Couple Riding a Bike; Three, Including kid hurt

MYSURU

In a shocking incident, a leopard attacked a farmer couple who were traveling to their farmland on a motorcycle, leaving three people, including a child, seriously injured.

The incident occurred at Chunchanahalli village in Nanjangud taluk of Mysuru district on Saturday.

According to information reaching here, farmer Nanjundaswamy of Chunchanahalli village was heading towards his farmland near the Chunchanahalli–Konanuru road along with his wife and child when the leopard attacked them. The big cat pounced on the farmer while they were riding the motorcycle. As a result, the farmer, his wife, and their child fell from the bike and sustained serious injuries.

Local residents immediately shifted them to the government hospital in Tagadur, and later they were admitted to a hospital in Mysuru for advanced treatment.

The menace of the leopard has reportedly increased in the areas of Chunchanahalli, Konanuru, and Hanumanapura villages, where it has been frequently attacking livestock. Janaspandana Sparks Hope: Yadavagiri Residents See Swift Civic Action

Residents of Yadavagiri witnessed a promising shift in civic engagement when members of the Yadavagiri Residents Association (YRA) participated in the first-of-its-kind Janaspandana meeting organised at the MCC Zone-4 office on January 30. Despite short notice and limited preparation time, residents utilised the opportunity to raise pressing local issues, receiving encouraging responses from officials. Representing YRA, member Suresh submitted a memorandum highlighting key concerns, including the increasing number of vendors occupying the newly constructed concrete footpath around Cheluvamba Park, encroachment of footpaths along Valmiki Road, and the growing nuisance of beggars near the traffic signal. Presiding over the meeting, Deputy Commissioner for Development C.N. Manju promptly directed officials to prevent new vendors from setting up stalls and remove existing vendors lacking MCC permits. He expressed concern over the growing number of illegal vendors and criticised officials for their inadequate action. He also reiterated the council's earlier decision to designate a specific street in each ward for authorised footpath vendors and relocate them accordingly.

Another YRA member, Dr. Rajeswar, raised the issue of misuse of open land opposite his residence, where Vani Vilas Water Supply authorities had failed to construct a protective wall near water tanks. The absence of a boundary has turned the area into an illegal garbage dumping spot and a gathering place for late-night drinking, leading to unhygienic conditions. Residents also highlighted incomplete footpath works along the half-kilometre stretch from Ramakrishna School to Vontikoppal Police Station Circle. Less than half of the interlocking tiles have been laid, and that too poorly.

State Failed to Detect Drug Links: MP Yaduveer

Mysuru-Kodagu Lok Sabha Member Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar alleged that the Karnataka police had failed to detect the drug network that was recently busted by the Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB), which seized drugs worth ₹10 crore during raids conducted in Mysuru and several other parts of the country. Addressing a press conference at his office here on Saturday, he said that the Delhi Police, which arrived on January 28 and conducted searches related to the drug racket, exposed the failure of the Karnataka Police in tackling the menace.

Referring to the NCB raid at Hebbal, he said both the Home Minister and the City Police Commissioner, who hold responsible positions, had initially claimed that nothing was found. Given their quick response, they believed their statements to be true. However, the official NCB release later confirmed the seizure of narcotics and revealed Mysuru's connection to the drug network. The NCB even raided locations where drugs were being manufactured in Mysuru.

Yaduveer said police teams from Delhi and Maharashtra were coming to Mysuru and detecting drug-related activities, which indicated deterioration in law and order in the State. This raises serious questions about what the State police are doing. Mysuru's name is repeatedly being linked with drug-related cases. The Mysuru Police and the Home Minister had earlier stated that no drugs were found, which has now created doubts over their claims. It clearly shows that the State government's administration has collapsed.

The MP pointed out that complaints regarding drug abuse were increasing particularly in the Narasimharaja constituency. The Azeez Sait Park in that area was reportedly being referred to as "Solution Park," reflecting the worsening law and order situation. Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, who takes pride in Mysuru as his home district, to treat these incidents as a serious challenge. Crimes such as drug trafficking, rape and murder of minors, gang wars, and other murders were becoming frequent occurrences. The Home Department had failed to control crimes in districts such as Hubballi and Ballari. Referring to the recent stone-pelting incident at Udayagiri Police Station, he said it reflected a decline in respect for law enforcement.

The MP said Mysuru, known for its environment, valour, heritage, and culture, should not be associated with such criminal activities. He also expressed suspicion over the responses of the Home Minister and the City Police Commissioner. He said these crimes should be recorded as serious law and order failures during the government's tenure and warned that if the government fails to treat the issue seriously, they would launch strong public protests.

Appeal for Protection of River Cauvery

Yaduveer said that during his tenure he had facilitated several development projects, including the Manipal Flyover work, Kushalnagar Highway development, ₹20 crore eco-tourism development around Karanji Lake, preservation of the traditional Tonga ride with a □3 crore project, a new railway yard, Vande Bharat connectivity, and terminal runway expansion.

He added that he has requested the government, in the upcoming Budget, to formulate a framework to protect River Cauvery, often referred to as the "Southern Ganga." He also said he had sought measures to address human-wildlife conflict in Kodagu and requested support from the Tourism Department for the Arjuna memorial.

Prof. Nicolas de Sadeleer Visits Floral Revolution Villages

MYSURU

Pandavapura Taluk of Mandya district recently witnessed a landmark international academic and grassroots interaction with the visit of Prof. Dr. Nicolas de Sadeleer, Full Professor of Law at the UCLouvain, Saint-Louis, Brussels, Belgium. Prof. Dr. Nicolas de Sadeleer was inspired by the pioneering social entrepreneurship and farmer-centric innovations of Dr. Vasanth Kumar Thimakapura after attending his talk in an international webinar. Deeply impressed by the scale and sustainability of the interventions, Prof. Nicolas expressed a strong desire to visit Dr. Thimakapura's agricultural innovation laboratory in Mysuru and the villages where his models have transformed rural livelihoods.

During the field visit, Prof. Nicolas interacted extensively with farmers and closely studied the unique "Local Crop Doctor" concept developed by Dr. Thimakapura. Under this innovative model, unemployed rural youth are identified, trained in modern agricultural and horticultural technologies at Dr. Thimakapura's Mysuru laboratory at his own cost, and then deployed within their own villages to provide scientific crop advisory services—particularly in chrysanthemum cultivation.

Earlier, farmers faced severe disease pressure and low productivity, earning only Rs 40,000–Rs 50,000 per year. With the combined impact of microfinance support, concepts of agronomy, innovations, structured training programs, eco-friendly integrated disease and insect management practices, and continuous technical guidance, farmers' annual incomes have increased dramatically to Rs10–15 lakhs per year.

Farmers expressed immense happiness and gratitude, stating that due to Dr. Vasanth Kumar Thimakapura's interventions, they are now leading dignified and prosperous lives. Many have constructed new houses, admitted their children to reputed schools in cities, purchased land in Mysuru, and are able to spend confidently on education, weddings, and other social functions.

Prof. Dr. Nicolas de Sadeleer appreciated the initiative as a globally relevant model of sustainable agriculture, rural entrepreneurship, and community-led development, emphasizing that such innovations strongly resonate with international discussions on sustainability, environmental governance, and inclusive economic growth. Further Dr. Nicolas expressed his desire to have collaborative work and invited Dr. Thimakapura to Belgium. Rtd. Professors of Mysore university Prof. Vasanthamma, Prof. K.T. Veerappa, Prof. Jagadish and others were also present. Dr. Nicolas was honoured during the visit.

Dr. Kanthraj GR Conferred Prestigious National Award at DERMACON 2026

Dr. Kanthraj GR, Professor of Dermatology at JSS Hospital, Mysuru, has been conferred the prestigious Prof. Senthamil Selvi Award, a national honour instituted by the Indian Association of Dermatologists, Venereologists and Leprologists (IADVL), in recognition of his outstanding contributions to dermatology research.

The award was presented during DERMACON 2026, the National Conference of Dermatology, held in Bengaluru, one of the largest academic forums for dermatologists in the country.

Dr. Kanthraj was honoured for his pioneering work on the conception, design and validation of the Tinea Corporis Score (TCS) and its advanced version, the Modified Tinea Corporis Score (MTCS), which have significantly influenced dermatology literature and clinical practice. The Tinea Corporis Score is a standardized tool used to assess the severity of tinea corporis (ringworm) and objectively monitor treatment response. It translates visible clinical features such as redness, scaling, itching, discomfort, and extent of skin involvement into numerical values, with higher scores indicating more severe disease.

The MTCS improves practicality by using standardized images or grids to estimate affected areas quickly and accurately, reducing observer variation and saving time. Both scoring systems have been validated and published in internationally reputed journals, including Mycoses. Earlier, Dr. Kanthraj received the Sir C. V. Raman Award from the Government of Karnataka and several international fellowships, underscoring his academic excellence and sustained contributions to dermatological research.

BJP Spokesperson Demands Resignation Dr G Parameshwar and Suspension of Police Commissioner

MYSURU

BJP State Spokesperson M.G. Mahesh said that it is unfortunate that Karnataka, especially Mysuru and Bengaluru, is being transformed into a drugs (narcotics) hub , and demanded that Home Minister Dr G Parameshwar should resign immediately and that the Mysuru Police Commissioner Seema Latkar, who allegedly provided false information, should be suspended.

In a press release here, he said that law and order situation in the state has severely deteriorated. The National Crime Bureau has also reportedly stated in its report that drug manufacturing and supply activities are repeatedly being found in various parts of Karnataka. In recent months, a drugs factory that had been operating in Mysuru was dismantled by police officials from Gujarat and Maharashtra, who came to Karnataka and cracked down on drug manufacturing units in Mysuru and Bengaluru. He further stated that as the Gujarat Anti-Drugs Bureau continued its investigation, it reportedly raided another factory in Mysuru yesterday, halted the production of narcotics there, and arrested four individuals. The Narcotics Crime Bureau of Surat has already confirmed this raid. However, he alleged that the present State Government is attempting to cover up these incidents.

He also alleged that the Home Minister himself misled the public regarding the materials seized inside the drugs factory. In addition, he claimed that Mysuru Police Commissioner Seema Latkar had given false information by stating that no illegal substances were found during the raid. It is highly concerning that Mysuru Rural Police, during a raid on the residences of relatives of the accused persons, allegedly recovered opium worth crores of rupees. The misgovernance of the Congress government is responsible for turning Karnataka into an "Udta Karnataka" (a reference to widespread drug problems). The drug trade is misleading and affecting youth across the state.

Manjunath urged careful, necessary pesticide use to boost farming profits and protect the environment, releasing a groundnut pest management booklet

Use pesticides only as final farm option: Manjunath

CHITRADURGA

Farmers should treat chemical pesticides as a last step, not the first choice, said District Joint Agriculture Director B. Manjunath during a training programme in Hiriyur taluk. He urged growers to follow integrated pest management methods to protect crops, lower costs, and keep soil and food safe.

The two-day training was held at Babbur Farm by the District Agriculture Training Center along with the Regional Central Integrated Pest Management Center from Bengaluru. The programme was meant for agricultural input sellers, who play a key role in guiding farmers.

Manjunath said pesticides and fertilizers must be used only when truly needed and in the right quantity. Careful use, he explained, can make farming more profitable and reduce harm to the environment. He also released an information booklet on pest management in groundnut crops.

Deputy Agriculture Director Umesh D. advised shop owners not to suggest chemicals for every problem. He said they should first guide farmers on ploughing methods, choosing suitable crop varieties, treating seeds, using biofertilizers, and practicing mixed and intercropping.

Deputy Director of Agriculture Shivakumar K.S. highlighted integrated farming systems as a way to improve income and ensure food security for families.

Plant Protection Officer Dr. Jayasimha warned that careless chemical use can affect food exports and health. Experts explained safety steps to follow before, during, and after spraying.

Assistant Plant Protection Officer V. Bhavya demonstrated the National Pest Surveillance System mobile app and spoke about new biopesticides and natural predators. Hundreds of farm input dealers attended the training and took part actively. Officials said awareness programs will continue to support safe, affordable, and sustainable farming across district.

Federation Asks Karnataka to Challenge Bike Taxi Verdict in SC

BENGALURU

The Karnataka State Federation of Private Transport Associations has urged the State Government to file a Special Leave Petition (SLP) before the Hon'ble Supreme Court challenging the recent High Court judgment in W.P. No. 906/2025, which favours the operation of bike taxis. The Federation stated that the verdict has serious implications for public safety, transport regulation, and the Government's policy-making authority.

The Federation argued that under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, motorcycles cannot be treated as "motor cabs" merely because they can carry a pillion rider. Motorcycles lack protective enclosures, crash safety mechanisms, and structural safeguards required for commercial passenger transport. There is no separate legal provision for bike taxis under the Act or the rules framed under it, and the Central Motor Vehicle Rules clearly distinguish between two-wheelers and passenger vehicles, reflecting legislative intent.

Citing data from NIMHANS and Police Department statistics, the Federation highlighted that two-wheelers account for nearly 70% to 85% of road accidents, often resulting in severe or fatal injuries. It also pointed out that in several bike taxi accident cases, passengers were left without proper insurance coverage or compensation, leaving victims unprotected.

The Federation emphasized that transport permits are not a fundamental right, as held by the Supreme Court in Mithilesh Garg v. Union of India and other cases, and that the State has full authority under Section 67 of the Act to regulate transport services in the interest of public safety. It warned that allowing bike taxis would increase accident risks, threaten passenger lives, harm regulated transport operators' livelihoods, and make enforcement difficult.

The Federation urged the Government to seek the Advocate General's opinion, file an SLP, obtain an interim stay, and safeguard public safety and State transport policy.

SANKRANTI FEST FUN

Sankranti fest brings joy to Government Employees

CHITRADURGA

State government employees in Chitradurga took a joyful break from their routine stress during the annual sports meet and Sankranti celebrations held at Veeravanite Onake Obavva Stadium. The event was organized by the district unit of the State Government Employees' Association on January 29th and 30th. Along with sports and cultural contests, a special evening music program called "Sankranti Sambhram" added color and excitement. Employees came with their families, turning the stadium into a festive space filled with smiles and music.

Film actor Prem attended the celebration and greeted the crowd warmly. Popular singers Kambada Rangaiah, Supritha Bhat, and folk artist Kadabagere Muniraju entertained the audience with hit songs and lively folk tunes. People clapped, swayed, and recorded the moments on their phones. For many employees, it was a rare chance to relax and forget office pressure.

More than 2,500 employees joined the sports events, while over 5,000 people, including family members, attended the evening show. Participants received quality T-shirts and caps, and a festive meal was served to everyone. Winners of various competitions were honored with prizes and mementos.

Association leaders said the program strengthened unity among staff and boosted morale. State President C.S. Shadakshari, Additional District Commissioner B.T. Kumaraswamy, and other officials appreciated the effort. District President Malatesh Muddaji and his team managed the arrangements smoothly.

Employees said the celebrations gave them fresh energy and happy memories to carry back to work. Such gatherings, they said, remind workers that joy and friendship are as important as duty. The association plans to make this festival celebration a regular feature in coming years for all staff families too across districts.

Iran never sought nuclear weapons: Araghchi

He stressed Iran's commitment to peace, its defensive capabilities, and readiness for fair nuclear talks while rejecting any pursuit of nuclear weapons

NEW DELHI

Iran's Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi met Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan and Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan on Saturday to discuss bilateral relations and regional stability. Araghchi emphasized that Iran has never sought nuclear weapons and is ready for a fair and equitable nuclear deal that protects its people's legitimate interests, ensures no nuclear weapons, and guarantees sanctions are lifted.

He expressed appreciation for Turkey's efforts to promote peace in the region and said Iran is always willing to work with neighboring states to maintain stability and prevent unlawful aggression. Araghchi stressed that Iran is open to negotiations with the United States, provided they occur without threats. He clarified that Iran's defensive and missile capabilities will never be a negotiation topic, asserting the country will expand its military strength as needed to defend itself.

The meeting comes amid heightened tensions between Tehran and Washington. US President Donald Trump has repeatedly threatened military action against Iran following a crackdown on anti-government protests and his push to halt Iran's nuclear programme. Araghchi reiterated that while Iran supports dialogue, negotiations under threats are unacceptable.

The Foreign Minister highlighted that Iran seeks to protect its people and regional peace while remaining committed to lawful and constructive diplomacy. The discussions with Turkey aimed to strengthen regional cooperation, resolve shared concerns, and reinforce the importance of stability, security, and mutual respect among neighboring nations.

Jaishankar, Oman FM discuss trade, strategic ties

NEW DELHI

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar on Saturday held talks with Oman's Foreign Minister Badr Albusaidi in New Delhi. The discussions focused on trade, critical minerals, and regional developments, reflecting the trust and comfort in the India-Oman strategic partnership. Albusaidi arrived in Delhi earlier for the 2nd India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting, which India is co-hosting with the UAE.

The meeting, happening after a ten-year gap since the first session in Bahrain in 2016, includes Foreign Ministers of Arab League member states and the Arab League Secretary General. It aims to build on prior cooperation in economy, energy, education, media, and culture, and deepen bilateral and regional ties.

India and the League of Arab States formalized their partnership in 2002 through a Memorandum of Understanding. Later, the Arab-India Cooperation Forum was established in 2008 and revised in 2013 to strengthen structural organization. India also participates as an Observer in the League of Arab States, which comprises 22 member countries.

The MEA said Albusaidi's visit will further strengthen the multifaceted strategic relationship, enhancing dialogue, trade, and cooperation across sectors, marking a significant step in India's engagement with the Arab world. Oman's Foreign Minister Badr Albusaidi arrived in New Delhi to attend the 2nd India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting (IAFMM). The Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) said his visit will strengthen the strategic partnership between India and Oman. MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal welcomed Albusaidi, noting the meeting will enhance multifaceted cooperation.

India is hosting the IAFMM, co-chaired with the UAE, with participation from Foreign Ministers of all Arab League member states and the Arab League Secretary General. The meeting comes ten years after the first FMM in Bahrain in 2016, which identified priority areas including economy, energy, education, media, and culture. The second meeting aims to expand and deepen cooperation across these sectors.

Waqf property survey, lease module added on UMEED portal

NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Minority Affairs on Saturday introduced two new modules on the UMEED Central Portal to enhance transparency and efficiency in managing Waqf properties. The newly added Survey Module enables systematic digital recording and updating of property surveys, while the Waqf Property Lease Module allows detailed tracking of leasing information, including lease periods, amounts, and other relevant data. Secretary Chandra Shekhar Kumar called upon all State and Union Territory Waqf Boards to implement these modules broadly and to create awareness among eligible beneficiaries. The UMEED portal, inaugurated by Minister Kiren Rijiju in June 2025, serves as a centralized platform for real-time uploading, verification, and monitoring of Waqf properties under the 1995 Waqf Management Act.

Key features of the portal include geo-tagging of all Waqf assets, an online grievance redressal system, transparent lease tracking, integration with GIS mapping, and public access to verified records. According to officials, these tools aim to improve accountability, encourage public participation, and modernize property management across India. The Ministry is working closely with States and Waqf Boards to ensure proper adoption, supervision, and efficient management of Waqf properties. By leveraging digital technology, authorities expect better tracking, reporting, and overall administration of these assets, ensuring that resources serve the intended beneficiaries while preventing misuse.

RELIEF IN THE SIGHT?

Budget 2026: A make-or-break moment awaits India's farmers

NEW DELHI

As Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman prepares to present her ninth consecutive budget on February 1, farmers across India hope for support through subsidies, guaranteed MSP, easier credit, modern technology, infrastructure, and climate-resilient aid.

The government has focused on four groups – poor, women, youth, and farmers – with steady budgetary support, insurance schemes, and institutional reforms.

Budget allocations for the Department of Agriculture and Farmers' Welfare rose from ₹21,933 crore in 2013–14 to ₹1.27 lakh crore in 2025–26. Spending also flows through irrigation, fertilisers, rural employment, and research ministries, showing a growing government commitment. However, agriculture's share in total public expenditure is gradually declining.

Farmer leaders have highlighted ongoing challenges. P. Krishnaprasad of Samyukta Kisan Morcha demanded MSP guarantees and better compensation for losses from floods and droughts, citing gaps in PM Fasal Bima Yojana. He noted instances where onion prices fell below production costs, while middlemen benefited.

The Bharatiya Kisan Sangh advocates wider market access instead of uniform MSP, noting costs vary across regions. It also seeks GST relief on irrigation equipment, support for organic farming, controlled imports of pulses and oilseeds, and encouragement for smallholders to diversify into animal husbandry, bee-keeping, or mushroom cultivation.

Despite government schemes like MSP, subsidies, and insurance, small and marginal farmers owning under two hectares—over 80% of India's farming population—remain vulnerable. Experts suggest broader policy reforms rather than just financial support may be key to sustainable farming.

As Budget 2026–27 approaches, farmers eagerly await announcements that could strengthen incomes, protect livelihoods, and modernize agriculture across India.

Kukreja murder: Mumbai court sentences friend

MUMBAI

A Mumbai court on Saturday sentenced Shree Jogdhankar to life imprisonment in the 2021 murder of her friend Jhanvi Kukreja, while acquitting another accused, Diya Padalkar. Kukreja, 19, was killed on January 1, 2021, after a New Year's Eve party in Khar. Police said Jogdhankar and Padalkar assaulted her and dragged her down from the fifth-floor terrace following a dispute over Jogdhankar's alleged closeness with Padalkar. Judge Satyanarayan Navandar found Jogdhankar guilty under the IPC.

'Bharat Jodo Yatra politically transformative'

NEW DELHI

The Congress on Saturday described the Rahul Gandhi-led Bharat Jodo Yatra as a transformative moment in India's politics. Covering 4,000 km over 145 days, the march went from Kanyakumari to Kashmir, passing through 12 states and two Union Territories. Congress said the yatra highlighted growing economic inequality, social polarization, and political authoritarianism. Jairam Ramesh, Congress general secretary, recalled the final speech in Srinagar and noted that letters by Nehru and Patel criticizing RSS and Hindu Mahasabha continue to inspire political discourse.

Zero tolerance for terrorism must be universal norm: EAM

He highlighted India-Arab ties, emphasizing collaboration across trade, energy, tech, education, innovation, and regional peace and security initiatives.

NEW DELHI

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar on Saturday emphasized that societies targeted by terrorism have the right to defend themselves and will exercise it.

Speaking at the 2nd India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting in New Delhi, he stressed the need for zero-tolerance against terrorism and stronger international cooperation to combat the global threat.

Jaishankar said terrorism, in all its forms, remains a common challenge for India and Arab nations. Cross-border terrorism, he added, violates fundamental principles of diplomacy and international relations. India and the UAE are co-chairing the meeting, which is the first India-hosted session in a decade, attended by Foreign Ministers and senior officials from all 22 Arab League member states.

He highlighted that the Middle East is undergoing significant political, economic, and demographic changes affecting India's interests. Key developments in Gaza, Sudan, Yemen, Lebanon, Libya, and Syria were discussed, with global peace efforts, including the Gaza conflict resolution, receiving particular attention.

Jaishankar noted India's long-standing partnerships with Arab nations, rooted in trade, culture, and people-to-people ties, and stressed the importance of collaboration in energy, technology, food, and health security. He described the India-Arab Cooperation Forum as a platform to strengthen bilateral and multilateral engagement, covering areas like energy, agriculture, culture, education, digital initiatives, space, start-ups, innovation, and counter-terrorism.

The EAM highlighted recent initiatives, including the launch of the India-Arab Chamber of Commerce, Industry, and Agriculture, which will complement existing cooperation frameworks. The meeting aims to chart a roadmap for India-Arab collaboration for 2026–2028, reinforcing strong ties and shared priorities in peace, security, and development.

Sudan seeks Indian help for reconstruction

NEW DELHI

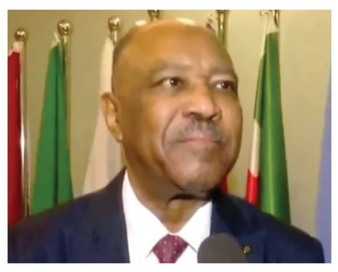
Sudan's Foreign Minister Mohieldin Salim Ahmed Ibrahim highlighted the country's urgent need for reconstruction following its devastating civil war.

Speaking ahead of the second India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting in New Delhi, he said Sudan will brief participants on investment opportunities and plans for business forums with Indian investors and officials.

The civil war, fought between the Sudanese Armed Forces and Rapid Support Forces since April 2023, caused widespread destruction. While full-scale rebuilding is slowed by ongoing conflict in some areas, localized efforts have begun to restore essential services such as water, electricity, and transportation. The United Nations estimates rebuilding Khartoum alone will cost over $350 million.

Ibrahim emphasized Sudan's readiness to partner with India in sectors like infrastructure, logistics including Red Sea ports, mining, agriculture, and pharmaceuticals. Plans are underway to create an India-Sudan Joint Business Council and Business Forum to strengthen economic and trade ties. Local projects, such as restoring the National Theatre and football stadiums, are already in progress. The minister stressed that these partnerships build on long-standing India-Sudan relations, and the India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting provides a key platform to expand cooperation. India is an observer of the League of Arab States, which includes 22 member nations. The forum, established in 2002 and revised in 2013, is the highest institutional mechanism driving India-Arab dialogue, facilitating investment, collaboration, and strategic partnerships.

Ibrahim invited Indian investors to actively participate in Sudan's reconstruction, highlighting opportunities in critical sectors and emphasizing mutual benefits for both nations.

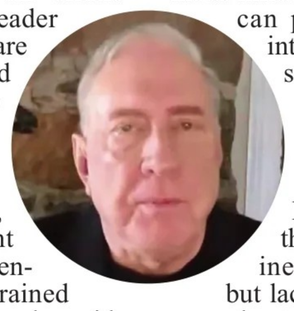


Sudan urges India to invest in post-war rebuilding, focusing on infrastructure, trade, and key sectors like mining and agriculture.

US military expert calls Trump 'erratic, impulsive' leader

NEW DELHI

US military expert Colonel Douglas MacGregor on Saturday criticised US President Donald Trump as an "erratic and impulsive" leader whose decisions are heavily influenced by a small group of billionaires. MacGregor, who has worked with Trump in the past, said the President is not truly independent and is constrained by wealthy donors who guide his political priorities.



MacGregor alleged that Trump's key targets and major decisions are not personally chosen by him but dictated by a handful of powerful billionaires funding his campaigns. "I told you they're a group of eight, nine, or ten billionaires. They have enormous influence because they can pour huge sums into campaigns," he said.

Recalling Trump's stance on ending the Ukraine war, MacGregor said the President genuinely wanted peace but lacked proper study or understanding. "He believed he could end the war on a phone call, reflecting his sincere interest but also his overestimation of presidential power," MacGregor added.

He also criticised Trump's perception of global affairs, noting that the President views the world as it existed 30 years ago. MacGregor described India, China, Russia, and Iran as independent "civilisational states" with distinct interests, adding that current US foreign policy is largely driven by billionaire donors rather than a clear strategy from Trump himself.

Earlier, Trump had stated that progress was being made to end the Russia-Ukraine conflict but acknowledged ongoing tensions between Ukrainian President Zelenskyy and Russian President Putin. He expressed optimism about reaching a settlement despite the challenges.

ED charges metalloids tech, promoters under PMLA

HYDERABAD

The Enforcement Directorate (ED), Hyderabad Zonal Office, on Saturday filed a charge sheet under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) against M/s Metalloids Technologies Private Limited (MTPL), its Managing Director Jayant Biswas, and his wife Mousumi Biswas. The PMLA Court at Rangareddy took cognisance of the charge sheet on January 28.

The investigation followed multiple FIRs registered by Telangana Police under Section 420 of the IPC, alleging that MTPL and its promoters cheated investors by offering high-return schemes without RBI approval. Originally incorporated for metallurgical and welding business, MTPL allegedly operated as a shell company to collect public deposits through fictitious schemes promising returns from 40% to 200% over short periods.

The ED stated that the promoters collected non-refundable registration fees of Rs 2,222 per ID, issued misleading agreements, and defrauded over 4,000 investors, mobilising Rs 114.52 crore. While Rs 99.57 crore was returned, Rs 14.95 crore was allegedly misappropriated. Early investors received payouts using funds from new investors, following a classic Ponzi model.

Muraleedharan: Not in 'mood' to contest assembly polls

THRISSUR

Senior Congress leader K Muraleedharan on Saturday said he does not wish to contest the upcoming Kerala Assembly elections and that the decision should be left to the party leadership.

He made the remarks after posters supporting his candidature appeared at Kayamkulam in Alappuzha and Thiruvambadi in Kozhikode.

Muraleedharan, son of former Chief Minister K Karunakaran, said, "I am not in the mood to contest elections. Let the party decide. It is not right to contest every election, and I have thought of staying away." He added that his focus would be on party work in Thiruvananthapuram, where a triangular contest is expected.

Commenting on the posters in his support, he said they had appeared across several places, except Payyannur and Kalliasseri. "Whether it is affection or a form of punishment, I do not know. In any case, I have nothing to do with them," he added.

Reacting to Kerala Education Minister V Sivankutty's challenge to Opposition Leader V D Satheesan from Nemom, Muraleedharan said the UDF will field a new and young candidate to defeat both Sivankutty and BJP state president Rajeev Chandrasekhar. He accused Sivankutty of trying to split anti-BJP votes and claimed he had become an "agent of the RSS" for seeking Sonia Gandhi's arrest in the Sabarimala gold case.

He also described the contest as a fight between a CPI(M)-BJP alliance and the UDF, dubbing it a "CJP" alliance. Muraleedharan noted a party demand that sitting MPs should not contest assembly polls, given public dissatisfaction with frequent bypolls. He said the final decision will rest with the party high command, and the UDF candidate list will include both youth and experienced leaders.

UAE MINISTER ARRIVES IN DELHI FOR INDIA-ARAB TALKS

NEW DELHI

UAE's Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Khalifa Shaheen Al Marar, arrived in New Delhi on Saturday for the 2nd India-Arab Foreign Ministers' Meeting. The visit aims to strengthen the India-UAE Comprehensive Strategic Partnership, focusing on mutual interests, cooperation, and key regional and global issues.

Randhir Jaiswal, spokesperson for India's Ministry of External Affairs, said the meeting will further bolster bilateral ties. "A warm welcome to H.E. Khalifa Shaheen Al Marar on his arrival in Delhi. His visit will strengthen the Comprehensive Strategic Partnership between India and the UAE," he posted on X.

Earlier, Qatar's Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Sultan bin Saad Al Muraikhi, arrived in Delhi on Friday for the same meeting to enhance strategic partnership and cooperation with India. Jaiswal also welcomed him, noting the visit's role in deepening bilateral ties.

The meeting, co-chaired by India and the UAE, is being held after a decade and brings together all 22 Arab League nations. Key areas of focus include economy, energy, education, and culture. India-Arab trade currently totals $240 billion, with hydrocarbons contributing $107 billion. Arab nations supply 95% of India's LPG, 60% of LNG, and 47% of crude oil.

This is the first India-hosted FMM in New Delhi, following the inaugural 2016 meeting in Bahrain. The platform was formalised in 2002 and expanded through the Arab-India Cooperation Forum. The 2nd FMM will build on existing cooperation across energy, finance, healthcare, IT, infrastructure, and people-to-people ties, including the 9 million Indians living in Arab countries.

Rajasthan HC denies bail to Vikram Bhatt couple

JAIPUR

The Rajasthan High Court on Saturday denied bail to filmmaker Vikram Bhatt, his wife Shwetambari Bhatt, and another accused, Mehboob Ansari, in a multi-crore fraud case.

Justice Vinod Kumar Bharwani of the Jodhpur bench observed that granting bail at this stage would be inappropriate as the investigation is still ongoing.

The Special Public Prosecutor (SPP) opposed the bail pleas, stating that crucial aspects of the probe remain pending and further custodial interrogation is necessary. According to the prosecution, Vikram Bhatt and his wife allegedly generated fake bills under different names, inducing the complainant to transfer large sums of money. These funds were then deposited into their personal accounts and used for repayment of debts and personal gains.

The SPP informed the court that the accused collectively received ₹4.23 crore from the complainant through multiple accounts. Of this, ₹1.65 crore was allegedly misused after being deposited directly into their accounts. The prosecution also cited pressure on witnesses and warned that releasing the accused could obstruct the investigation.

An FIR was registered on November 17, 2024, at Bhupalpura police station, Udaipur, by Dr. Ajay Murdia of Indira IVF against Vikram Bhatt and eight others for cheating and fraud amounting to nearly ₹30 crore. The complaint alleges that Bhatt and associates promised to produce four films for ₹47 crore, claiming potential profits of ₹100–200 crore. Only two films were completed, while the third and fourth projects remained incomplete, with funds allegedly misappropriated.

Kerala court allows termination of foetus with abnormalities

KOCHI

The Kerala High Court on Saturday allowed a couple to medically terminate their 31-week-old foetus, which suffers from serious congenital abnormalities of the brain and head. Justice Shoba Annamma Eapen granted permission based on a medical board report stating that the baby, if born, would face severe physical and neurological challenges. The board also noted that continuing the pregnancy could pose significant risks to the mother's mental health. Considering medical evidence, legal principles, and the board's recommendations, the court said denying termination would "only delay the inevitable and extend the suffering of the family." The court directed Kottayam Medical College to form a medical team immediately to carry out the procedure. The team has been instructed to use the safest medical method available while ensuring the life and health of the mother. Before the termination, the foetal abnormalities must be reconfirmed with a final scan.

The court further stated that if the foetus is born alive, the hospital must provide all necessary medical support, including incubation and treatment at any super-speciality centre, to maximise chances of survival. The parents will assume responsibility for the child's care and expenses if the foetus survives. The petitioners had argued that the foetus displayed features of microcephaly and other severe brain and head abnormalities, with a high likelihood of lifelong disability.

MEHRAULI PROJECTS

Delhi CM flays AAP over superficial development

NEW DELHI

Delhi Chief Minister Rekha Gupta on Saturday criticised the previous AAP government for prioritising flashy advertisements over addressing the real needs of citizens.

Speaking at the inauguration of projects worth more than Rs 135 crore in Mehrauli, south Delhi, she said that under the AAP, the area's heritage, infrastructure, and public welfare were largely ignored while only a polished image of the city was promoted. CM Gupta said the BJP government is focused on practical governance and real development, pulling Delhi out of the stagnation left behind by the previous administration. "The dream of a developed Delhi will be realised through our homes, colonies, and fully developed Assembly constituencies. Mehrauli is now moving firmly in that direction," she added.

She highlighted that the projects aim to preserve the historical significance of Mehrauli while also introducing modern infrastructure and facilities. The initiatives are expected to improve cleanliness, strengthen roads and public services, and make citizens' lives safer, more organised, and dignified.

The Chief Minister also indirectly criticised the former AAP regime, saying, "Some people merely made Delhi shine in advertisements. Their politics was focused on power; ours is about service, good governance, and development."

The event saw the presence of several local leaders, including MP Ramvir Singh Bidhuri, MLA Gajendra Singh Yadav, former Councillor Aarti Singh Yadav, and zonal presidents. CM Gupta said the projects mark a significant step in the BJP government's commitment to delivering tangible, citizen-centric development across Delhi.

She added that while preserving the city's heritage, the government is ensuring that citizens benefit from modern amenities, efficient public services, and long-term improvements that strengthen both infrastructure and community life.

We go begging, our heads bow down in shame: Pak PM

"Foreign aid and investments from China, Saudi Arabia, UAE, and Qatar are vital amid Pakistan's economic crisis."

ISLAMABAD

Pakistan Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif expressed deep concern over the country's heavy reliance on foreign loans, calling it a source of national shame.

He warned that seeking international financial aid undermines Pakistan's dignity and stresses officials, including Army Chief Asim Munir.

Speaking at an event in Islamabad with business leaders, Sharif said, "We feel ashamed when Field Marshal Asim Munir and I go around the world begging for money.

Taking loans is a huge burden on our self-respect. Our heads bow down in shame." He highlighted the urgent need for alternative economic strategies to reduce dependency on foreign aid.

Sharif acknowledged the support of Pakistan's "all-weather friends," including China, Saudi Arabia, the UAE, and Qatar. China has provided billions through the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, with over $60 billion invested in infrastructure and energy projects. Saudi Arabia extended a $3 billion deposit and a deferred oil payment facility, while the UAE and Qatar pledged multi-billion-dollar investments in energy, ports, agriculture, and LNG projects. These countries are critical for stabilizing Pakistan's foreign reserves and preventing a balance-of-payments crisis.

The Prime Minister also raised concerns over rising poverty and unemployment. Poverty rates have soared to 45% of the population, extreme poverty increased to 16.5%, and unemployment stands at 7.1%, with over eight million citizens jobless. He noted that exports remain heavily dependent on textiles, while growth in software, agriculture, and livestock is limited due to low productivity and structural challenges.

Sharif's remarks underline Pakistan's severe debt crisis, with total public debt surpassing Rs 76,000 billion as of March 2025. The Prime Minister's candid acknowledgment reflects structural economic fragility and the urgent need for reforms to secure sustainable development and national self-respect.

Pak court seeks clarification on Tirah military op

The Peshawar HC seeks clarification on the Tirah Valley operation and orders aid for over 70,000 displaced residents.

PESHAWAR

The Peshawar High Court (PHC) has summoned federal and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa (KP) governments for clarification on a recent military operation in Tirah Valley. Both governments denied authorizing the operation, with KP's Advocate General stating no provincial approval was given. The hearing follows a petition by Barrister Saud Javed Dawar of the National Democratic Movement, who called the operation unconstitutional.

Barrister Dawar argued that the military action violated Article 232, which requires provincial assembly approval, and sought a declaration that the operation was unlawful and violated fundamental rights. The PHC bench, led by Justice Wiqar Ahmad and Justice Mohammad Faheem Wali, directed the Provincial Disaster Management Authority (PDMA) to provide relief to displaced persons. IDP representatives are summoned on February 12.

The federal government cited Article 245, granting it authority to deploy armed forces for internal security without needing emergency proclamations or legislative approval. The interior secretary clarified that no formal orders or operational supervision were issued by the Ministry of Interior. Deployment under Article 245 does not require provincial or parliamentary approval. Civilian agencies like PDMA, NDMA, and provincial departments manage IDP welfare, including shelter, health, and education.

Over 70,000 people, mainly women and children, fled Tirah after warnings from mosque loudspeakers ahead of possible clashes. The military maintains that its operations target Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) fighters, many of whom cross from Afghanistan and reportedly use residents as human shields. The PHC continues to examine the constitutional provisions, the legality of the operation, and relief measures for affected civilians.

KEY POINTS

- Pakistan court seeks government clarification
- Operation linked to 70,000 displaced persons
- Constitutional debate over Articles 232 & 245
- Governments deny approving operation
- Hearing adjourned to February 12

Mira Nair appears in newly-released Epstein documents

WASHINGTON DC

Filmmaker Mira Nair, mother of New York mayor Zohran Mamdani, has been named in newly released documents linked to convicted sex offender Jeffrey Epstein. The files, unveiled Friday by the US Justice Department, reveal that Nair attended an afterparty at Ghislaine Maxwell's Manhattan townhouse in 2009 for her film Amelia.

The Justice Department released more than three million pages of FBI records, including 2,000 videos and 180,000 images. The disclosure followed the Epstein Files Transparency Act, passed to make all federal documents related to Epstein public. Deputy Attorney General Todd Blanche said the release ensures transparency and confirmed that sensitive materials, such as images of potential victims, were redacted to protect identities.

Among the newly released emails is one from publicist Peggy Siegal, describing Maxwell's party, which she said was attended by Nair, former President Bill Clinton, Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos, and others. Siegal described the event as an afterparty for Amelia, noting that the film had received mixed reviews.

Other emails include exchanges between Epstein and Elon Musk discussing an invitation to visit Epstein's island. Visuals in the release show prominent figures, including Bill Gates, Steve Bannon, Woody Allen, and Bill Clinton socializing with Epstein. None of these individuals have been charged in relation to the case.

New Epstein files claim Bill Gates 'misused' pills

WASHINGTON DC

Convicted sex offender Jeffrey Epstein claimed in 2013 that Microsoft co-founder Bill Gates requested medicine for sexually transmitted diseases allegedly resulting from "sex with Russian girls." These claims surfaced as part of a massive 3.5 million-page release of Epstein files by the US Department of Justice on Friday.

Epstein wrote a draft statement in the voice of Gates' longtime science adviser, Boris Nikolic, who was reportedly leaving the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Epstein described his role in assisting Gates with morally questionable and potentially illegal actions, including providing medicine, facilitating affairs with married women, and supplying medication for personal purposes such as bridge tournaments.

A spokesperson for Gates previously dismissed the allegations, calling them "absolutely absurd and completely false." Despite this, the claims have drawn renewed attention because of the public release of the files.

The draft statement suggests that Epstein warned Gates about potential exposure of his personal life and alleged affairs, including one with Russian bridge player Mila Antonova in 2017. Epstein also allegedly raised concerns that public knowledge could harm charitable pledges and donations associated with Gates' philanthropic initiatives.

Experts note that the files represent draft statements and unverified claims, and no legal charges have been filed in connection with these specific allegations. The disclosure has reignited media discussion about Gates' personal life and his associations with Epstein, though Gates' representatives continue to reject any wrongdoing.

The case underscores ongoing scrutiny surrounding Epstein's connections with wealthy individuals and raises questions about how public figures may have interacted with him in the past.

Armed clashes erupt across Baloch after BLA op announcement

BALOCHISTAN

Armed clashes, explosions, and attacks on security sites were reported across several districts of Balochistan early Saturday, after the Baloch Liberation Army announced the second phase of Operation Herof. Residents described a tense situation in Quetta, Nushki, Kalat, Mastung, Dalbandin, Kharan, Gwadar, Pasni, Tump, Buleda, and Dhadar, with heavy gunfire and blasts reported near police and military locations. In Quetta, firing and explosions were heard in multiple areas, including the Red Zone. On Sariab Road, attackers hit a police vehicle, killing two personnel and setting it on fire. Gunfire was also reported near the railway station, while images showed a damaged security vehicle. In Nushki, loud firing was heard near the Central Jail, with unverified reports claiming parts of the facility were seized. Clashes were also reported near the Frontier Corps headquarters and the Counter Terrorism Department office. In Dhadar, armed men attacked police posts and burned vehicles, injuring several officers. An explosion damaged the main gate of a forces camp in Kalat, with fighting continuing afterward. Similar incidents were reported from Dalbandin, Kharan, Pasni, Gwadar, Tump, and Buleda. The BLA later said it carried out coordinated attacks targeting military and administrative sites. It claimed movement of forces was restricted and fighting continued in several areas, while urging the public to support its campaign. Officials said the scale of the clashes was unclear, as communications were limited, and no official casualty figures were released by authorities by the time of publication on Saturday. Security measures were tightened across affected areas during early hours of the day.

Displaced Tirah families protest over delayed transport payments

KHYBER PAKHTUNKHWA

Scores of displaced families from Tirah Valley protested in Bara on Friday due to delays in receiving promised transport fare payments. The protest came amid reports that fewer families were arriving after the evacuation slowdown caused by heavy snowfall.

Frustrated residents threw stones at the Alamgudar Registration Centre and official vehicles after waiting for long periods. Turab Ali from Sipah said families endured harsh winter conditions during travel and could not tolerate further delays. Lal Zamir, another displaced resident, criticized staff for making people wait without valid reasons.

The district administration later closed the Alamgudar Centre and announced plans to revise the cash distribution schedule to prevent overcrowding and confusion. Although four registration points were set up in Bara, cash was being distributed only at Alamgudar, causing long queues. The other centres at Shalobar, Malakdinkhel, and Qambarabad remained mostly empty due to fewer arrivals.

Evacuation from Tirah had been suspended on January 23 because snow made travel unsafe. A 24-member Tirah Jirga advised remaining residents to stay home, citing harsh weather and conflicting statements about military operations in the valley. Only a few families reached Bara recently after weather improvements.

Officials said that 13,725 families, nearly 70,000 people, have arrived in Bara since evacuations began in late December. All were issued SIM cards after biometric verification at Paindi Cheena and other centres. Authorities assured that remaining families would be registered upon arrival. The revised distribution schedule aims to streamline cash payments and reduce tensions among the displaced population.

HOMELAND SECURITY FUNDING

US govt partially shuts down despite funding deal

WASHINGTON DC

The US government entered a partial shutdown early Saturday after the Senate approved a revised funding package, but the House is not expected to vote until Monday at the earliest.

The shutdown affects federal agencies temporarily as lawmakers continue negotiations.

The Senate vote separated extended funding for the Department of Homeland Security, delaying it for two weeks to address Democratic demands on Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). Proposed reforms include requiring ICE agents to wear body cameras and prohibiting masks during operations. The bill passed the Senate 71-29, with only five Republicans voting against it: Rand Paul, Ted Cruz, Mike Lee, Ron Johnson, and Rick Scott.

The legislation now moves to the House, where Speaker Mike Johnson must secure a two-thirds majority for approval before it reaches President Donald Trump. Both Republican and Democratic support is crucial for passage.

Earlier, Republican Senator Lindsey Graham lifted his hold on the bill after receiving a commitment for a future vote on banning sanctuary cities. Minority Leader Chuck Schumer emphasized the need for strong ICE reforms, warning that failure to enact meaningful changes could block Democratic support.

The partial shutdown highlights ongoing partisan disagreements over immigration enforcement, funding priorities, and oversight of federal agencies. Lawmakers face pressure to resolve differences quickly, as federal operations and services remain affected. The coming days will determine whether Congress can approve full funding and end the disruption before its effects expand further across federal departments and programs.

NSE IPO can proceed with full risk disclosure: Legal expert

New Delhi

As the National Stock Exchange (NSE) gets ready to file its long-awaited initial public offering (IPO) draft papers in the next 3-4 months, a leading legal expert on Saturday said what matters most is full and timely disclosure of all pending cases and risks in the IPO documents. The capital markets regulator SEBI gave no-objection certificate (NOC) to the NSE, and the exchange can now finalise the structure and timing of its IPO. Supreme Court advocate B. Shravanth Shanker told that the long-pending NSE IPO can go ahead even as regulatory cases related to the co-location and dark fibre issues remain unresolved, provided there is full and timely disclosure of all risks and pending matters in the offer documents.

Tobacco tax regime from Feb 1, cigarettes to get costlier

New Delhi

From February 1, the government is bringing a new tax structure for cigarettes, tobacco products and pan masala, aiming to tighten regulation and keep tax levels high on these so-called 'sin goods'. An additional excise duty will now be charged on cigarettes and tobacco products, along with a new health and national security cess on pan masala. These new levies will replace the earlier system under which these products were taxed at 28 per cent GST along with a compensation cess that has been in place since the launch of GST in July 2017. The government is also introducing a new MRP-based valuation system for several tobacco products such as chewing tobacco, filter khaini, jarda scented tobacco and gutkha.

Expectations galore from Union Budget 2026–27

Ruling party leaders showed optimism before the Union Budget, while Opposition voiced disappointment, low expectations.

NEW DELHI

As Nirmala Sitharaman prepares to present the Union Budget 2026–27 in Parliament on Sunday, political reactions across the spectrum reflected a sharp divide. Leaders from the ruling alliance expressed confidence that the budget would embody an inclusive and forward-looking vision, while Opposition parties said they expected little, accusing the Centre of continued neglect of several states.

Senior BJP leader and Uttar Pradesh minister Brajesh Pathak said the budget would underline the government's commitment to inclusive development. He noted that the forthcoming financial roadmap would give voice to farmers, youth, women, industrialists, and the poor. Tomorrow, the country's budget will be presented in Parliament. Through this budget, we will see how an inclusive framework is crafted — one that becomes the voice of farmers, youth, women, industrialists, and the poor, Pathak said.

He also credited Prime Minister Narendra Modi for transformative changes since 2014, highlighting the government's claim of lifting nearly 25 crore people out of poverty. Pathak described these achievements as a strong foundation on which the upcoming budget would build.

Union Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal emphasised the historic nature of the occasion, pointing out that Sitharaman will be presenting the Union Budget for the ninth consecutive time. The Prime Minister's vision is to make India a 'Viksit Bharat', Meghwal said, adding that recent economic surveys had outlined encouraging trends in manufacturing growth, agriculture's contribution to GDP, and overall economic strength.

He further stated that as India moves closer to becoming the world's third-largest economy, the benchmarks set in the budget would need to be ambitious. According to Meghwal, the government is expected to align fiscal planning with long-term growth objectives and global economic standing.

BJP Rajya Sabha MP Dinesh Sharma framed the budget presentation as a symbol of women's empowerment. He said that a woman finance minister presenting the budget nine times consecutively was a powerful reflection of the government's stated commitment to empowering women. Sharma also noted that the Economic Survey had already provided a clear indication of the country's economic direction ahead of the budget.

Big push likely for defence, infra, capex

NEW DELHI

As Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman gears up to table the Union Budget 2026-27 in Parliament on February 1, economists say the emphasis this year will be on defence, infrastructure, capex, power, and higher growth in affordable housing, apart from balancing social welfare with fiscal prudence. Besides, policymakers will also balance growth priorities with fiscal discipline amid heightened global uncertainty.

The Budget is likely to strike a deft balance of sustaining growth momentum and maintaining fiscal consolidation. It also needs to address near-term challenges emanating from unprecedented geopolitical flux, said economists.

The government has been steadfast on the path of fiscal consolidation, with the fiscal deficit easing from Covid induced high of 9.2 per cent to 4.4 per cent for FY26E (estimated).

According to experts, government will largely maintain its fiscal rectitude and do not expect major deviation from this path.

FM Sitharaman will present the 15th Budget of the PM Modi government on February 1. This will also be the second full Budget since the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) came to power for a third consecutive term in 2024. Sitharaman is also the first woman finance minister of the country to present the Budget in Parliament for the ninth consecutive time.

While the FY26 Budget was more tilted towards stimulating middle-class consumption with tax reliefs, the FY27 Budget's approach to stimulating consumption will be selective, they added.

According to economists, the budget is likely to focus more on capital expenditure, especially in sectors deemed to be strategically important owing to prevailing geopolitical compulsions, said Motilal Oswal Financial Services Ltd in its 'India Strategy' report.

SBI launches 'CHAKRA' centre to finance India's sunrise sectors

MUMBAI

India's largest state-owned lender, State Bank of India (SBI), on Saturday announced the launch of CHAKRA a Centre of Excellence designed to support financing for sunrise sectors considered vital to India's long-term economic transformation. The initiative aims to create a knowledge-led institutional platform that will enable funding for next-generation, technology-driven, and sustainability-focused industries.

According to an official statement, CHAKRA will concentrate on eight key sunrise sectors: renewable energy, advanced cell chemistry and battery storage, electric mobility, green hydrogen, semiconductors, decarbonisation, smart infrastructure, and data centre infrastructure. These sectors are expected to play a defining role in India's future growth trajectory, particularly as the country accelerates its transition toward clean energy, digital infrastructure, and advanced manufacturing.

SBI said that by 2030, these sunrise sectors are projected to require capital investments exceeding ₹100 lakh crore, underscoring the scale of opportunity and the complexity of financing involved. Through CHAKRA, the bank aims to responsibly channel capital into these capital-intensive areas by strengthening risk assessment frameworks and developing innovative, customised financing structures.

India's growth over the coming decades will be anchored in innovation, sustainability, and advanced manufacturing, said Challa Sreenivasulu Setty, Chairman of SBI. With CHAKRA, SBI is strengthening its institutional capability to understand emerging sectors, design specialised financing solutions, and partner with the broader ecosystem.

Setty added that the Centre of Excellence would reinforce SBI's leadership in new-age technologies and climate finance, while also enhancing India's integration into global value chains. The initiative is expected to support both domestic and international investors seeking structured, data-driven insights into emerging sectors.

The country's largest lender has set up a Centre of Excellence to support financing of sectors such as renewable energy, semiconductors, electric mobility and data centres, with large capital needs.

The government has also welcomed the move. M Nagaraju, Secretary in the Department of Financial Services (DFS), said the centre's vision of becoming a coordinated ecosystem platform would significantly accelerate India's progress towards its long-term development goals. He noted that CHAKRA's focus on knowledge-sharing, project appraisal, capacity building, and evidence-based policy engagement aligns closely with the vision of Viksit Bharat 2047.

NSE IPO process gathers pace as DRHP likely in 3–4 months

NEW DELHI

The long-awaited initial public offering (IPO) of India's largest stock exchange has taken a decisive step forward, with National Stock Exchange Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer Ashish Chauhan confirming that it would take around three to four months to prepare the Draft Red Herring Prospectus (DRHP), a crucial document required to launch the public issue.

Speaking at the sidelines of an event on Saturday, Chauhan welcomed the clearance from the market regulator, describing it as a breakthrough after nearly a decade of delays. After 10 years, SEBI has agreed to start the IPO process. We thank SEBI for this, he said, acknowledging the role of the Securities and Exchange Board of India in clearing the path for the exchange's listing.

Chauhan said that while the DRHP is being prepared, NSE will simultaneously work on the offer-for-sale (OFS) component of the IPO. It will take three to four months for the draft Red Herring Prospectus to be made, he noted, adding that preparatory work on both fronts would proceed in parallel to avoid further delays.

The exchange currently has around 1.91 lakh existing shareholders. Chauhan explained that eligible shareholders who are willing to divest part of their holdings through the OFS route will be accommodated during the process. In parallel, there are 191,000 existing shareholders. Those who are eligible and want to sell their shares in OFS, we will collect those shares in parallel for offer for sale, he said.

SEBI's approval marks a major milestone for NSE, whose IPO plans had remained stalled for more than a decade due to regulatory concerns. These included governance-related issues and the high-profile co-location case, which led to prolonged investigations and compliance requirements before the regulator was satisfied.

With the regulatory green signal now in place, NSE is expected to move ahead with finalising the structure, size, and timeline of its public issue. The listing is widely seen as one of the most significant events in India's capital markets, given NSE's dominant position in equity and derivatives trading.

IIFT plays pivotal role in shaping future leaders: Goyal

NEW DELHI

The Indian Institute of Foreign Trade (IIFT) is playing an important role in shaping future leaders and further strengthening India's presence in the global trading landscape, Minister of Commerce and Industry, Piyush Goyal. IIFT has been ranked first in the 'Times B-School Ranking 2026', reaffirming its position as a premier institution in management education with a distinctive focus on international trade and global business.

Goyal described the achievement as a testament to IIFT's sustained efforts in empowering students with skills, vision and critical capabilities.

Commerce Secretary and Chancellor of IIFT, Rajesh Agrawal, said the institute's progress reflects its strong academic foundation, expanding global orientation and commitment to excellence.

IIFT supports India's aspiration to emerge as a global powerhouse in international trade and contributes to the vision of Viksit Bharat by nurturing globally competent management professionals aligned with national trade, economic and strategic priorities, he emphasised.

Established in 1963, the Indian Institute of Foreign Trade is a deemed-to-be-university under the Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

Higher STT backfiring on revenue collection: Kamath

MUMBAI

Zerodha co-founder Nithin Kamath has raised concerns over the repeated increase in Securities Transaction Tax (STT), saying that higher taxes are slowly hurting trading activity in the markets. In a recent social media post, Kamath explained that STT was introduced at a time when long-term capital gains (LTCG) tax was removed. However, even after LTCG was brought back, STT has continued to rise with every Union Budget. He said that as a market participant, he always hopes for a reduction in STT, but instead sees it increasing year after year.

As a market participant, I always hope the budget will reduce STT, but it keeps going up. STT was introduced when LTCG was made 0, but now that LTCG is back, Kamath said in a post on social media platform X. Kamath highlighted the sharp hike announced in Budget 2024, where STT on futures and options (F&O) trades was raised by 60 per cent.

The tax on futures went up from 0.0125 per cent to 0.02 per cent, while the levy on options increased from 0.0625 per cent to 0.1 per cent. According to him, the impact was not immediately visible because markets were in a strong bull phase and trading activity remained high. The 60 per cent F&O STT increase from Budget 2024 (0.0125 per cent to 0.02 per cent on futures and 0.0625 per cent to 0.1 per cent on options) didn't impact volumes much at first, the bull market continued with surging participation, he stated.

A DREAM MEANT TO REALISE

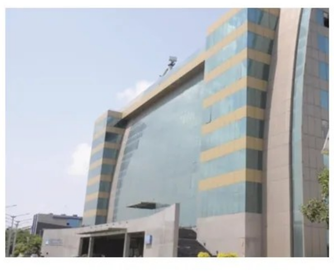
'Institutions must work together to realise 'Viksit Bharat' vision'

NEW DELHI

India's leadership has articulated a clear and forward-looking vision for the country's future, and institutions must contribute both individually and collaboratively to realise the goal of Viksit Bharat, said Gyaneshwar Kumar Singh, Director General and Chief Executive Officer of the Indian Institute of Corporate Affairs (IICA).

The remarks were made during a high-level interaction hosted by IICA, according to a statement issued on Saturday.

Singh underlined the rapidly evolving demands of industry and emphasised the need for institutions to remain relevant and responsive to national priorities. He noted that as India's economy grows in complexity and scale, institutional collaboration will be critical to ensuring policy coherence, capacity building, and sustainable economic outcomes.



The IICA hosted a senior delegation from the National Productivity Council (NPC) to explore potential areas of collaboration. The delegation was led by Neeraja Shekhar, Director General, and Umashankar Prasad, Deputy Director General (Group). Discussions focused on cooperation in training, research, productivity enhancement, sustainability initiatives, and compliance support for industry and government stakeholders.

During the visit, detailed presentations were delivered by the heads of various schools and centres under IICA. These presentations outlined the institute's mandate and wide-ranging activities, highlighting its multifaceted role in education, professional training, policy research, advocacy, and advisory services. According to the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, IICA plays a key role in supporting both government programmes and private sector initiatives through evidence-based policy inputs and institutional capacity building.

Shekhar, in her address, traced the origins of the National Productivity Council to 1958, shortly after India's independence, when the country faced scarce resources and an urgent need to improve productivity. She recalled the historic Indian productivity delegation to Japan, which laid the groundwork for institutionalising productivity improvement efforts in the country.

Since then, NPC has significantly broadened its scope, expanding beyond the industrial sector into agriculture, services, micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs), sustainability, green productivity, and ESG-linked initiatives. Shekhar also highlighted NPC's active engagement with the Asian Productivity Organization, which enables international exposure through inter-country study visits, expert exchanges, and productivity benchmarking frameworks.

LINDSEY VONN Defies Injury Setback, Insists Olympic Dream Lives On After Downhill Crash

CRANS-MONTANA

Lindsey Vonn has once again reminded the sporting world why she remains one of the most compelling figures in Alpine skiing, even as adversity threatens to derail her latest Olympic ambitions.

Alpine skiing icon Lindsey Vonn vows resilience after injury setback threatens her preparations for the Milano Cortina Olympics.

The American legend said her Olympic dream was not over after a heavy downhill crash in Crans-Montana, Switzerland, left her hospitalised just a week before the start of the Milano Cortina Games.

The 41-year-old confirmed that she suffered an injury to her left knee following the crash, a cruel twist of fate given the timing and her recent resurgence on the World Cup circuit. Posting on Instagram, Vonn acknowledged the severity of the setback but struck a characteristically defiant tone, insisting that her pursuit of another Olympic appearance remains alive.

This is a very difficult outcome a week before the Olympics, she wrote. But if there is one thing I know how to do, it's a comeback.

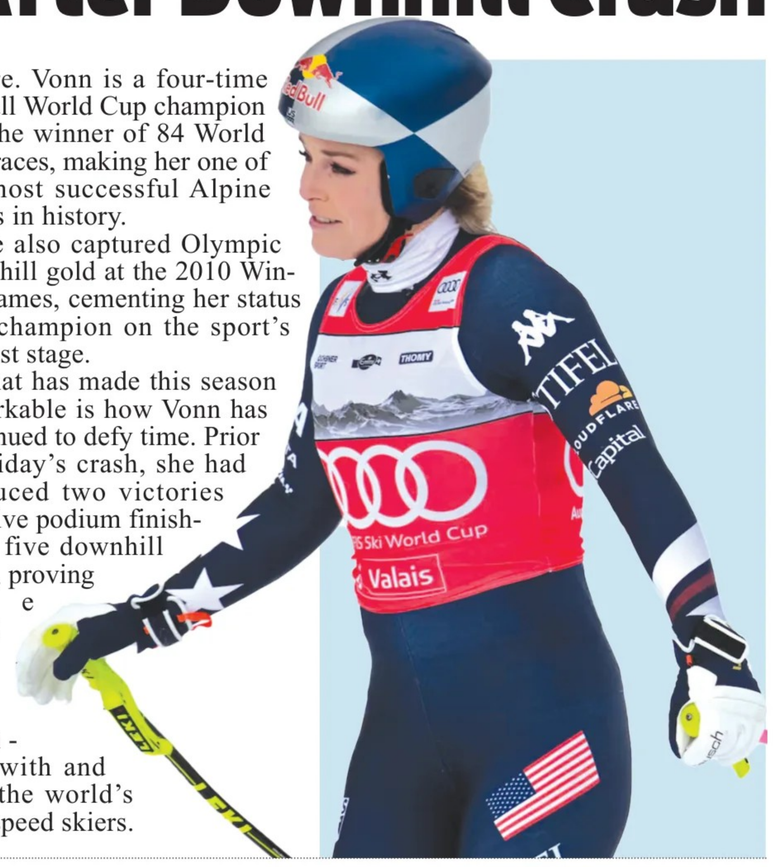
Vonn's confidence is rooted in experience. Over a career spanning nearly two decades at the highest level, she has endured a catalogue of injuries that would have ended many athletes' careers.

Knee surgeries, fractures, and repeated comebacks have become an unfortunate but defining feature of her journey. Each time she has been written off, she has returned to challenge assumptions about age, durability, and longevity in elite sport.

Statistically, her legacy is already secure. Vonn is a four-time overall World Cup champion and the winner of 84 World Cup races, making her one of the most successful Alpine skiers in history.

She also captured Olympic downhill gold at the 2010 Winter Games, cementing her status as a champion on the sport's biggest stage.

What has made this season remarkable is how Vonn has continued to defy time. Prior to Friday's crash, she had produced two victories and five podium finishes in five downhill races, proving she could still compete with and beat the world's best speed skiers.



DJOKOVIC Hits Back at Doubters After Stunning Semi-Final Win Sets

MELBOURNE

Novak Djokovic has forcefully rejected suggestions that his time at the top of men's tennis is nearing its end after producing a vintage performance to defeat Jannik Sinner in the semi-finals of the Australian Open. The 38-year-old rolled back the years in a gripping five-set encounter, overcoming the double defending champion to book his place in yet another Grand Slam final.

The victory not only showcased Djokovic's enduring quality but also served as a pointed response to critics who, in his view, have been eager to push him toward retirement. Speaking candidly after the match, the Serbian great said he had never doubted his own ability to compete at the highest level, despite growing skepticism from commentators and former players in recent seasons. I never stopped believing in myself, Djokovic told reporters. There's a lot of people that doubt me. I see there is a lot of experts all of a sudden that wanted to retire me or have retired me many times the last couple of years. Rather than being discouraged, Djokovic said such criticism had the opposite effect, fuelling his desire to prove them wrong on the sport's biggest stages. I want to thank them all, because they gave me strength, he added. They gave me motivation to prove them wrong, which I have tonight. For me, it's not a surprise, to be honest. I know what I'm capable of.

The semi-final was a stern test of Djokovic's resilience and experience. Facing one of the tour's most in-form players, he was forced to dig deep physically and mentally, particularly during moments when his level dipped. Djokovic acknowledged that Grand Slam matches often demand more than flawless tennis, especially at the later stages of a long career. I've had many, many times in my career matches during the Grand Slam where it's just one of those days where you're not feeling your best, he explained. You try to find a way to win with everything that you possibly have, even though the quality of tennis is not even close to where you want it to be.

Katie Uhlaender Appeals to CAS After Canadian Withdrawals Derail Olympic Qualification Bid

BEIJING

Katie Uhlaender has taken her case to the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS), asking the body to review a decision by Canada to withdraw four athletes from a key skeleton event earlier this month. The withdrawals, Uhlaender argues, had a decisive impact on her chances of qualifying for the upcoming Winter Olympics.

CAS confirmed that the United States athlete has formally requested a review, following the controversial developments at a race held in Lake Placid. The event was part of the Olympic qualification pathway for the Milano Cortina Olympics, which begin on February 6 in Italy.

According to Uhlaender's appeal, Canada's decision to pull four competitors from the Lake Placid races significantly reduced the size of the field. Under the sport's qualification and ranking system, a smaller field meant fewer World Cup ranking points were available. As a result, Uhlaender — a two-time world champion — was unable to accumulate enough points to remain in contention for Olympic qualification.

The 40-year-old is one of the most experienced athletes in skeleton racing and has represented the United States at multiple Olympic Games. Her appeal underscores the fine margins that often define Olympic qualification, particularly in niche winter sports where athlete numbers and event participation can directly influence rankings.

While Canada has not publicly commented in detail on the withdrawals, such decisions are typically made by national federations based on athlete welfare, strategic considerations, or logistical concerns.

However, Uhlaender's case raises broader questions about how late withdrawals can affect competitive fairness, especially when Olympic qualification is at stake for athletes from other nations.

CAS is expected to examine whether the Canadian withdrawals breached any applicable regulations or whether the consequences for ranking points warrant corrective measures. The court's review process may include submissions from the athlete, international federations, and the Canadian authorities involved.

Harry Brook Admits Misleading Account of Nightclub Incident

PALLEKELE

Harry Brook has acknowledged that he previously gave an incomplete account of a nightclub altercation in New Zealand last year, admitting he was not alone during the incident and that his actions were motivated by a desire to protect his teammates. The England white-ball captain said the episode has been a difficult but valuable learning experience in his career.

The incident occurred on October 31 in Wellington, when England were touring New Zealand. A report published by Daily Telegraph II on January 8 claimed Brook was struck by a nightclub bouncer after being refused entry to the venue. At the time, Brook indicated that he had been alone during the confrontation.

However, in a statement released the 26-year-old admitted that other England players were present and accepted responsibility for misleading comments made earlier. Brook explained that his intention had been to prevent his teammates from being drawn into controversy stemming from his own decisions. I accept responsibility for my actions in Wellington and acknowledge that others were present that evening, Brook said. I regret my previous comments and my intention was to protect my teammates from being drawn into a situation that arose as a result of my own decisions.

Brook also confirmed that he had apologised for his behaviour, which he felt had brought embarrassment to himself and the England team. While details of any disciplinary measures were not expanded upon, his statement suggested a period of reflection following the incident.

Rain Limits Barcelona F1 Testing as Verstappen Tops Timesheet for Red Bull

BARCELONA

Formula One teams endured a wet and stop-start second day of private testing in Barcelona with only Red Bull Racing and Ferrari choosing to run in the challenging conditions. Persistent rain limited running for most outfits, turning the session into a cautious exercise focused more on data gathering than outright performance.

Despite the weather, four-time world champion Max Verstappen took to the track for Red Bull and emerged as the standout performer. The Dutchman set the fastest time of the day when the circuit briefly dried, finishing more than a second clear of Ferrari's pace-setter. His lap underlined Red Bull's early confidence as preparations continue for the new season.

Red Bull also made headlines through French driver Isack Hadjar, who had topped the timesheets. According to multiple media reports, Hadjar was involved in a minor off-track incident late in the day, resulting in slight damage to the rear of his car. The team, however, is not believed to be overly concerned by the episode.

Ferrari ran for the first time this week, with Charles Leclerc completing 64 laps during the morning session despite steady rain. The Monegasque driver later handed over driving duties to seven-time world champion Lewis Hamilton, who logged a solid 57 laps in the afternoon.

Leclerc stressed that Ferrari's priorities were not lap times. For now it's all about trying to understand if everything is working properly, which it kind of did, he said. It's not the best conditions because it has been a little bit raining this morning, but we did our programme anyway because we are not focused on performance whatsoever.

Elsewhere, McLaren, the two-time defending constructors' champions, opted against running, instead fine-tuning their setup. The team confirmed their car will debut on track and is expected to run through.

Real Madrid Shocked Into Champions League Playoffs

MADRID

Real Madrid were sensationally pushed into the Champions League qualifying playoffs after a chaotic and unforgettable defeat to Benfica, coached by former Madrid boss José Mourinho.

The result also condemned reigning champions Paris Saint-Germain to the same playoff route, sending shockwaves through European football.

Madrid entered the final round of the new 36-team league phase sitting comfortably in third place and appeared well positioned to advance directly to the round of 16. Even two goals from superstar forward Kylian Mbappé seemed enough to secure progress. Instead, a 4–2 defeat in Lisbon saw the Spanish giants tumble to ninth in the standings — just one place below the automatic qualification cut-off.

The match descended into chaos late on. Benfica, who were themselves on the brink of elimination, needed a dramatic swing in goal difference to survive.

That moment arrived in extraordinary fashion during the eighth minute of stoppage time when goalkeeper Anatoliy Trubin surged forward and scored with a powerful header, sending the Estádio da Luz into raptures.

The goal proved decisive not only in the match but in the standings. Astonishingly, Benfica advanced to the knockout phase in 24th place — the final qualifying position on goal difference alone. Madrid, meanwhile, were left stunned and depleted, having been reduced to nine men moments earlier after red cards for Raul Asencio and Rodrygo further tilted the balance.

For Mourinho, the victory carried added symbolism. Facing the club he once led to domestic and European success, the veteran coach masterminded one of the most dramatic results of the Champions League season, eliminating his former side from automatic progression with a blend of discipline, belief, and late-game audacity.

Jensi Kanabar Creates History as First Indian Female to Win Australian Open

SYDNEY

Union Sports Minister Mansukh Mandaviya congratulated India's rising tennis star Jensi Dipakbhai Kanabar after she became the first Indian female to win the Australian Open Asia-Pacific Elite 14 & Under Trophy. The historic triumph came after a sensational comeback victory at the 2026 edition of the tournament, held at Melbourne Park.

Kanabar produced a display of remarkable composure and resilience in the final, rallying from a set and an early second-set deficit to defeat home favourite Musemma Cilek. Trailing 3–6, 0–2, the Indian teenager clawed her way back into the match, silencing the partisan crowd with a fearless baseline game and mental toughness beyond her years.

From Junagadh to Melbourne — India's pride serves an ace, Mandaviya wrote in a post on X, lauding the achievement of the young Khelo India athlete. Congratulations to our Khelo India athlete Jensi Kanabar from Junagadh, Gujarat, for winning the Australian Open Asia-Pacific Elite 14 & Under Trophy 2026 and becoming the first Indian female to achieve this historic feat.

Hailing from Junagadh, Kanabar's success highlights the growing strength of India's regional tennis ecosystem.

Her ability to overcome both a physical disadvantage against a more powerfully built opponent and the pressure of a hostile environment underscored a rare competitive maturity. That stoicism was evident as she lifted the trophy, marking a milestone moment for Indian women's tennis.

> India's teenage tennis sensation Jensi Kanabar scripted history in Melbourne, earning praise from Sports Minister Mansukh Mandaviya.

Kanabar's path to the title was equally impressive. She reached the final without dropping a single set, showcasing consistent dominance throughout the tournament. In the semi-finals, she overcame Japan's Aoi Yoshida, displaying nerves of steel after edging a tight first-set tiebreak before accelerating decisively in the second.

Earlier, Kanabar topped Group A with a flawless 3–0 record, defeating several of the Asia-Pacific region's most promising young talents.

In total, she won eight consecutive sets in Melbourne, underlining the baseline consistency and tactical discipline that became her trademark during the event.

Women's HIL Season Two Propels Young Indian Hockey Stars

NEW DELHI

Women's HIL season two spotlighted emerging Indian talent, earning national camp call-ups ahead of key international tournaments.

The second season of the Women's Hockey India League (HIL) proved to be a transformative platform for India's next generation of hockey players, offering them the rare opportunity to compete alongside elite international talent. The tournament delivered high-intensity, competitive matches and played a crucial role in accelerating the development of several young Indian players, many of whom produced consistent, match-winning performances.

Their impressive displays have now been rewarded with selection for the senior Indian women's national team training camp under newly appointed Chief Coach Sjoerd Marijne.

The camp forms a key part of India's preparation for upcoming international assignments, most notably the FIH Hockey Women's World Cup Qualifier 2026, scheduled to be held in Hyderabad in March.

Among the standout performers was 20-year-old defender Lathantluangi, who emerged as a cornerstone of the Ranchi Royals backline. Ranchi Royals finished the Women's HIL with the best defensive record in the competition, conceding just seven goals across the tournament. Lathantluangi's maturity belied her age, as she demonstrated exceptional game awareness, positional discipline, and composure under pressure. Her ability to read attacking threats early and transition defence into attack made her a vital asset. Operating deep in her own half, she consistently used accurate distribution to initiate offensive moves, helping her side build structured attacks from the back. Her performances throughout the league marked her out as one of the most promising defensive talents in Indian women's hockey.

Equally influential was Bansari Solanki of SG Pipers, who played a decisive role in her team's championship triumph. In a tense final against Shrachi Bengal Tigers, Solanki produced a clutch performance in the shootout following a 1–1 draw. The 24-year-old goalkeeper made three crucial saves, including stopping a penalty stroke, as SG Pipers edged out a 3–2 victory to lift the title.

Solanki's calmness under pressure was a defining feature of the final and reflected her consistency throughout the season. Sharing goalkeeping duties with Argentine international Cristina Cosentino, she maintained high standards across matches and was duly recognised with the 'Goalkeeper of the Tournament' award.

Devika to take on Huang Yu in SF of Thailand Masters 2026

NEW DELHI

India's impressive run at the Thailand Masters 2026 badminton tournament continues, with Devika Sihag advancing to the semi-finals of the women's singles competition. Devika will face fifth seed Huang Yu Hsun of Chinese Taipei this afternoon at the iconic Nimibutr Stadium, with the match scheduled to begin at 1.45 PM IST.

Devika booked her place in the last four with a memorable quarter-final victory over Thailand's Supanida Katethong, the world number 16. Playing in front of a partisan home crowd, the Indian shuttler displayed exceptional composure, sharp shot selection, and tactical awareness to outmanoeuvre the higher-ranked opponent. The win marked one of the biggest results of Devika's career and underlined her growing confidence on the international circuit.

Her semi-final clash against Huang Yu Hsun is expected to be a stern test. The fifth seed has been consistent throughout the tournament and will look to use her experience to halt Devika's momentum. However, the Indian shuttler's recent form suggests she will approach the contest with belief, having already proven her ability to rise to the occasion against top-ranked opponents.

India's campaign in women's singles also featured Isharani Baruah, who bowed out at the quarter-final stage. Isharani fought hard but eventually went down to Malaysia's Wong Ling Ching in a three-game battle, losing 18-21, 21-16, 21-13. Despite the defeat, her run reflected resilience and competitiveness against quality opposition.

In the men's singles draw, India's challenge ended in the quarter-finals after Tharun Mannepalli was defeated by China's Zhu Xuan Chen. Tharun lost 11-21, 17-21, bowing out after a spirited effort against a strong opponent.

As the focus shifts to the semi-finals, all eyes will be on Devika Sihag, who carries India's hopes in Bangkok. A win this afternoon would not only secure her a place in the final but also mark another major milestone in her rapidly progressing badminton career.

Cummins ruled out as Australia make two changes in T20 WC squad

SYDNEY

Australia's pace spearhead Pat Cummins has been ruled out of the T20 World Cup due to injury as Cricket Australia made two changes to the provisional squad to finalise their 15-member team for the mega T20 spectacle, commencing on February 7. Cummins, along with Josh Hazlewood and Tim David, had initially been named in Australia's provisional squad, pending fitness.

The pacer, who has not played since his solitary Ashes Test appearance in Adelaide, since suffering a lumbar stress injury in July, has not recovered fully from his lingering back injury and will miss the marquee tournament in Sri Lanka and India.

Meanwhile, top-order batter Matthew Short has also been omitted from the original 15-player squad. However, Josh Hazlewood, who missed the entire Ashes series due to hamstring and Achilles injuries, has been included in the T20 World Cup squad. Tim David is also back in the team after missing the Pakistan tour.

Mitchell Marsh captains the team as Australia named a spin-heavy group, with Adam Zampa joined by Matthew Kuhnemann, Cooper Connolly and all-rounders Glenn Maxwell and Matt Renshaw. Mitchell Owen is the most notable omission from the 15-man squad.

Despite Cummins's absence, the team's fast bowling unit looks strong with Hazlewood leading the pack, supported by Nathan Ellis, Xavier Bartlett and Ben Dwarshuis, who came in place of Cummins.

Australia has been drawn in Group B alongside Ireland, Oman, Sri Lanka and Zimbabwe. They will play their group stage matches in Sri Lanka, kicking off their campaign against Ireland on February 11 in Colombo.

The team is currently playing a three-match T20I series against Pakistan, where Mitchell Marsh's side lost the first match by 22 runs. Australia squad for the 2026 T20 World Cup- Mitchell Marsh (c), Xavier Bartlett, Cooper Connolly, Tim David, Cameron Green, Nathan Ellis, Josh Hazlewood, Travis Head, Josh Inglis, Matt Kuhnemann, Glenn Maxwell, Matthew Renshaw, Marcus Stoinis, Adam Zampa, and Ben Dwarshuis.

Delhi Pro Volleyball League set to debut this year

NEW DELHI

Delhi Pro Volleyball League (DPVL) has been officially launched with backing of the Delhi Volleyball Association, along with support from the Delhi Olympic Association. Japan's Tokito Oda becomes youngest man to hold all four Major titles simultaneously

MELBOURNE

Japanese prodigy Tokito Oda made history by winning the Australian Open 2026 men's wheelchair title against Martin De la Puente, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. This victory made him the youngest man to simultaneously hold all four Grand Slam titles across any professional tennis format. At only 19 years old, Oda's victory over the third seed at Melbourne Park makes him the second man ever to win four consecutive men's wheelchair singles majors, joining Japanese legend Shingo Kunieda, who astonishingly won 12 in a row starting from 2007.

Oda's victory marks his second AO crown and his eighth major title overall, bringing him within two titles of Britain's Alfie Hewett. Now firmly established as the world No.1, Oda is on track to approach Kunieda's record of 28 men's wheelchair singles Grand Slam titles.

First, I gotta say, I was missing you, baby. I want to appreciate Martin. You are my best friend on tour. We always hang out every time, and you speak Japanese, so sometimes it's so funny with you. It's the first time we shared a final at a Grand Slam. I was very happy to play with Martin. Big congrats to your team, Oda jokingly mentioned his first trophy won in 2024 before shifting focus to De la Puente.

Oda also secured the doubles title, teaming up with Argentinian Gustavo Fernandez for his second Grand Slam doubles victory.

Thank you all, I really appreciate all of your love … I hope you guys keep supporting wheelchair tennis. Thank you so much, he said.

The championship match started with De la Puente taking a 3-1 lead in the first set, just before the day's first rain delay. Although Oda managed to briefly catch up, the Spaniard responded strongly, causing Oda to lose his first set of the tournament.

Oda raised his game significantly in the second set, moving quickly to reach balls and returning them deep into the corners, applying heavy spin to force De la Puente out of position.

After a long rain delay, Oda regained control under the Margaret Court Arena roof, securing the title with 52 winners to De la Puente's 31. He also won 74 per cent of his first-serve points, significantly surpassing his opponent's 51per cent.

Aishwarya Rajesh Speaks About Difficult And Disturbing Early Career

Aishwarya Rajesh, now widely admired for her powerful and grounded performances, recently spoke candidly about the disturbing experiences she encountered at the start of her acting career. Appearing on filmmaker Nikhil Vijayendra Simha's podcast, the actor reflected on incidents that deeply affected her and highlighted the realities many young women continue to face in the film industry.

She recalled an unsettling episode during an early photoshoot when she was still very young. Aishwarya said she attended the assignment with her brother, but the photographer asked him to wait outside and took her inside alone. Once inside, he handed her lingerie and made an inappropriate request, leaving her shocked, confused, and frightened. She admitted that for a brief moment she almost complied, but her instincts warned her that something was seriously wrong. Thinking quickly, she told the photographer she needed her brother's permission before proceeding, which allowed her to exit the situation safely. Aishwarya revealed that she never discussed the incident at home and later wondered how many others endured similar experiences in silence. The actor also recounted another painful moment on a film set, where a director publicly scolded her for arriving a few minutes late. While she accepted professional criticism, being shouted at and compared to actresses felt humiliating.

Films are no longer being made as independently as before: Anurag Kashyap

In the discussion titled 'Fearless Film Making' held as part of the 17th Bengaluru International Film Festival, Bollywood actor-director Anurag Kashyap participated and spoke openly about the current trends in cinema, politics, and technology. Renowned film critic Baradwaj Rangan moderated the session.

"In today's times, making films like Gangs of Wasseypur or Black Friday is impossible. Some subjects have become politically sensitive and lead to controversies," Anurag Kashyap opined.

"Directors from countries like Iran or Russia are making films despite facing far greater restrictions than us. Indian directors should draw inspiration from them," he said.

Speaking about the recent film Dhurandhar, director Anurag Kashyap said, "This is a good example of a courageous mainstream film. I liked the film, but I didn't like some of the ideologies. The dialogue about 'This is the new India' and one long political monologue, among a total of three scenes, were unnecessary; even without them, the film's impact would not have diminished."

Kashyap remarked that calling films 'propaganda' or 'promotion' is itself a form of propaganda.

"Hollywood's Marvel films propagate American supremacy, but no one criticizes them from that perspective," he added.
